American-Owned Utility Company Offices Stoned

PANAMA (AP) —Demonstrators stoned the offices of the American-owned Light and Power Co. in Panama's capital city Wednesday in the second day of anti-U.S. violence.

They also set fire to an automobile parked in front of the offices on the city's Central Avenue.

Panama army troops broke up the demonstration.

Panama's government said meanwhile the United States was at least partly to blame for the current trouble.

A counter-protest over Tuesday's rioting was delivered by Foreign Minister Miguel Moreno Jr. to U.S. Ambassador Julian Harrington.

Moreno said the tearing down of an American flag at the U.S. Embassy Tuesday came after similar acts against a Panamanian flag in the Canal Zone. He gave no details in his reference to the Panamanian flag.

More than 80 persons were injured in Tuesday's incidents during celebrations of the 56th anniversary of Panama's independence.

Moreno's note said Panama "laments yesterday's occurrences and in no way can accept or approve the acts of the type that motivated your protest."

"Nevertheless," the note added, "I must say that in relations to the occurrences at the Canal Zone boundary, my government has information about certain unjustifiable acts, such as firing on groups of unarmed Panamanians and throwing tear gas bombs on various sectors of the city. These have left more than 40 Panamanian citizens wounded by actions of the armed forces of the United States."

Panama was put off limits to Americans living in the Canal Zone after the trouble. Panamanian and U.S. troops faced each other along the Canal Zone boundary line. Both were ordered into position to keep demonstrators from moving into the zone.

Space Capsule Rocketed Aloft And Recovered

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Mercury space capsule was hurled 35,000 feet high Wednesday by a Little Joe rocket—moving America one step nearer getting a man into space.

Within 45 minutes of the firing, the one-ton capsule was scooped from the Atlantic by the Navy salvage vessel Preserver about five miles from the takeoff point on Wallops Island, Va.

It was the second such test in perfecting the escape mechanism designed to save the astronauts' lives if they run into trouble during launchings. An escape rocket was fired 35 seconds after the take-off.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the launching was designed particularly to test the performance of the escape system under maximum load conditions.

The test used a capsule similar to one that will be placed into orbit carrying a man.

Atlas missiles will be used for the actual man-in-space shots, probably in 1961. The Little Joe is an instrument for which six launchings have been scheduled in unmanned tests.

The later firings will carry aloft monkeys and finally a chimpanzee to test the effects on them of acceleration, weightlessness and deceleration. NASA said no living thing was aboard in Wednesday's test.

The Little Joe is a 30-foot cluster of Sergeant rockets and smaller booster rockets. The 10-foot, one-ton capsule it carries is surmounted by a 16-foot escape rocket.

The escape rocket—a tower arrangement on top of the capsule—is designed to shoot the capsule several thousand feet above the main rocket if anything goes wrong during a launching. It then is supposed to open parachutes and safely lower the capsule to earth.

Ike Off Dec. 4 On 9-Nation Goodwill Trip

19-Day Expedition Will Take President To Three Continents

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower announced Wednesday he is undertaking an unprecedented 20,000-mile goodwill mission next month to nine nations on three continents.

The pre-Christmas tour will take Eisenhower to Europe, Asia and a corner of Africa.

No president ever has attempted anything like this 19-day expedition to the capitals of Italy, Turkey, Pakistan, Afghanistan, India, Iran, Greece, France and Morocco.

Eisenhower told a news conference he will be off Dec. 4. He expects to fly back to Washington Dec. 22.

He also did a bit of traveling around at the news conference, touching on developments both at home and abroad.

Calls TV Scandals "Mess"

The President said everyone was astonished and almost dismayed by the TV quiz show scandals and "nobody will be satisfied until this whole mess is cleaned up."

The Federal Trade Commission, he said, is looking into the possibility there was deceitful advertising and the Justice Department will report before the end of the year on whether laws were violated and new laws are needed.

The Communist menace, Eisenhower said was an obvious topic to raise in protesting anti-U.S. demonstrations in Cuba because:

"We know that the Communists like to fish in troubled waters and there are certainly troubled waters there."

Then there was the matter of Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York and the way he is eyeing the Republican presidential nomination. Rockefeller spent 70 minutes with Eisenhower last week.

CD, Politics Discussed

For a good portion of the time, Eisenhower said, they talked about civil defense, a common interest. But also on that visit "we talked politics all across the board," Eisenhower said. He added, though, that "I could not possibly remember now any kind of conclusion we reached."

Something like a third of the news conference was given over to the travel plans.

Eisenhower said he plans brief, informal visits to the various capitals in response to friendly visits from heads of other governments.

Most of the details will come later. But the President said he hopes to call on Pope John XXIII while he is in Rome. Eisenhower also said he wants to be in New Delhi Dec. 11 for the opening of the U.S. exhibit at a World Agricultural Fair.

Gave Orders To Producer, Probers Told

Revlon Official Denies Company Aware Of Rigging

WASHINGTON (AP)—The associate producer of the scandal-rocked "$64,000 Challenge" quiz show swore in testimony read Wednesday night that the shows frequently were rigged on instructions from the sponsor.

The testimony was given in an affidavit by Shirley Bernstein, who identified the sponsor as Revlon, Inc., a leading cosmetics firm. It was read by Richard N. Goodwin, staff investigator for the House Commerce subcommittee probing quiz shows.

Miss Bernstein is a sister of Leonard Bernstein, director of the New York Philharmonic Orchestra. She has been named in previous testimony as one who had coached quiz show contestants.

Miss Bernstein's sworn statement came after sworn denials by Martin Revson, former executive vice president of Revlon, that the company was aware of the rigging. Revson's brother, Charles, president of the company, said he personally was not aware of anything amiss.

Instructed As To Outcome

Miss Bernstein said the rigging was done at the request of Steve Carlin, head of Entertainment Productions, Inc., owner of the quiz show.

"Was it your complete understanding from the start that you were receiving instructions from the sponsor as to how a match should come out?" Goodwin asked.

"Yes, completely," Miss Bernstein replied in the sworn deposition. "There were many meetings with the sponsor where Mr. Carlin would come back white with anger."

She was asked if Carlin ever told her directly that the sponsor had requested a particular outcome to a match."

She replied: "Yes. Often I would say 'Why do it this way?' Mr. Carlin would say that it was not his wish, but the sponsor wanted it that way."

Goodwin: "By sponsor, he meant primarily Revlon?"

Miss Bernstein: "Yes. I was given to understand that we had little or no interference from the Lorillard people."

Perjury Action Hinted

Miss Bernstein said that to the best of her ability the instructions were followed.

Goodwin said the affidavit from Miss Bernstein was obtained on Oct. 5; She has refused to talk in public of what she knew about rigging.

Asked why the advance question technique was used in some cases, Miss Bernstein said:

"Either the contestant was very nervous or the sponsor had requested a particular outcome of a match."

She said it was safe to assume that everyone connected with the programs, including the networks, were aware of the custom.

U.S. Mediators Suspend Steel Negotiations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Federal mediators abruptly recessed the deadlocked steel negotiations Wednesday after a 30-minute joint bargaining session failed to make any progress toward ending the 113-day-old walkout.

Mediation Chief Joseph F. Finnegan told newsmen there was no point in continuing the talks until both sides agreed on the cost of their various contract proposals.

He also said the union and industry bargaining teams seemed preoccupied with the forthcoming Supreme Court ruling on the legality of a Taft - Hartley injunction ordering the 500,000 strikers back to work for 80 days.

"Our mediation sessions are independent of the court," Finnegan said, "but naturally everybody has their eyes focused on the nation's highest tribunal."

The court, which heard four hours of arguments on the injunction issue Tuesday, was expected to hand down its decision late this week or early next. It never before has ruled on the constitutionality of a Taft - Hartley injunction.

Meanwhile, President Eisenhower was asked at his news conference if he planned to call a special session of Cangress if the high court voids the back-to-work order against the Steelworkers.

"I don't believe I'd better answer any 'iffy' questions on this," he replied. "This is very emotional. It is very serious, and I think we will just have to wait and see what the answer is."

In suspending the negotiations, Finnegan made plain the bargaining teams would remain subject to recall as soon as they resolve the wide difference between their estimates of the costs of their proposals.

Finnegan said he hoped for a resumption of bargaining Friday.

Israel, U.A.R. Jets Tangle Over Negev

JERUSALEM (Israeli Sector) (UPI)—Israeli jets fought a short sharp air battle with United Arab Republic MIG-17 jets Wednesday 25,000 feet above the Negev desert, a military spokesman said.

The Israeli spokesman said the clash took place inside Israel's airspace. He said the Israeli fighters drove off four Communist-made MIGS and returned safely to base without losses.

(The Cairo spokesman said there were two clashes and that both of them occurred over Egyptian territory).

The Israeli military spokesman said the four U.A.R. MIGs swept in from the direction of the Sinai peninsula and flew over the central Negev area, some 12 to 18 miles inside the Israeli border.

He said that Israeli fighters intercepted the MIGs and a "short air battle" took place.

The U.A.R. jets were routed, the spokesman said.

He announced that Israeli had lodged a complaint with the United Nations Emergency Force over the incident.

Pilot Lone Survivor Of Two-Plane Crash

BINGHAM, Maine (AP) — An Air Force pilot walked out of the mountainous wilderness Wednesday, apparently the sole survivor of a two-plane aerial collision in which a second man was killed and a third is missing.

Lt. Frederick M. Johnson, 22, Chicago, parachuted into a tree, spent the night there and came out Wednesday morning to a lumber camp. He appeared little hurt.

The Air Force said a T33 trainer towing a target on a radar practice mission collided Tuesday night with an F102 fighter.

Bomber Falls Into Gulf; One Rescued, 3 Missing

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A 2½-million-dollar jet bomber with four men aboard plunged into the Gulf of Mexico during a training exercise Wednesday. A helicopter pilot rescued the navigator but the three others were missing.

An Air Force - Coast Guard search started before dawn over an area about 100 miles southwest of Tampa and about 70 miles out to sea.

The crash was the fourth in 11 months for the six-jet B47s from MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa. The Air Force said a board had started an investigation to determine the cause.

Officials said the plane—one of 45 from the Strategic Air Command's 306th Bomb Wing—went down at 4:19 a.m., one hour and 19 minutes after takeoff.

Lt. Franklin Delano Harrod, Hattiesburg, Miss., told newsmen he bailed out on instructions from the aircraft commander.

"I didn't see any other parachutes," Harrod said, "because in our method of bailing out we would be spaced a mile or two apart and it was pitch dark."

Listed as missing were Maj. Morris O. Beck, 38, aircraft commander, son of Mrs. Fern Beck, Amarillo, Tex.; Lt. George W. Eggleston, 24, copilot, son of Fred O. Eggleston, Charleston, W.Va.; and T.Sgt. Norman William Ruwe, 38, son of Ethel Ruwe, Lake Park, Iowa.

Shell Explodes Aboard Warship, Injuring Seven

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A three-inch shell exploded aboard the destroyer Willis A. Lee 35 miles at sea Wednesday, injuring seven men, one critically.

The Navy destroyer force headquarters here said the anti-aircraft shell exploded in a forward gunmount as it was being moved from a storage room in a projcetile hoist.

The Navy said one sailor was critically hurt.

Eight Youths Admit Slaying Negro Boy

CORINTH, MISS., (UPI)—Eight white teenagers have confessed to the shotgun killing of a Negro boy who was returning home from a Halloween party last Saturday night, police said Wednesday.

Officers said Darnell Glidwell, 17, admitted firing the gun that killed William Roy Prather, 15. No charges were filed against Glidwell and the seven other youths pending further investigation by local and state police.

The boys had been driving around town in a truck causing disturbances on Halloween night, officers said.

Police said one of the youths broke down under extensive questioning and implicated the others who also confessed.

Television Moppet Jet Age "Runaway"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evelyn Rudie, 9, the impish "Eloise" of television acting fame, touched off a cross-country scramble Wednesday by disappearing from her Hollywood home and flying to Washington.

She got off a four-engine jet passenger plane at Baltimore's nearby Friendship International Airport with a tale of wanting to visit the White House and ask Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower to give her career a boost.

With the coolness of an old theater pro, the brown-eyed blonde stuck to this explanation:

"When I saw Mrs. Eisenhower in Washington last year, she told me that she and her grandchildren and the President enjoyed my acting so much. So I decided to talk with her and see if she couldn't help me get a part in a film or TV series."

She said she had broken open four piggy banks in her room, extracted $160 and bought her airline ticket last Monday when she and her mother, Mrs. Emery Bernauer, separated during a shopping trip.

Then, she went on, she telephoned for a taxicab before 6 a.m. Wednesday went to Los Angeles International Airport and boarded a plane.

Evelyn told newsmen she bought her ticket at an airline office in the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel after agreeing to meet her mother about an hour after they parted to perform separate shopping errands. They had parted in that manner before, she said, but not often.

The girl's father, police related, said he had taught the much-traveled youngster the details of making reservations, checking baggage through—the works.

Airlines officials confirmed that a girl had picked up the ticket for Evelyn's airplane seat. They said an advance call had been made by someone identifying herself as the girl's mother.

Capt. Carl Kunaniec of the Baltimore airport police said he was told that Los Angeles traced her through a check of Hollywood travel terminals. Kunaniec was asked to meet the plane when it arrived at the airport.

He did so and turned the girl over to Mrs. Jacob Mogelever, Chevy Chase, Md., a friend of the Bernauer family.

"Thank God, thank God," sobbed Mrs. Bernauer when told her daughter had safely arrived on the East Coast.

Blizzard-Like Storm Moving Into Midwest

By United Press International

A far-ranging wintry storm sent blizzard snows surging from the Rockies into the Middle West Wednesday night and hit the Southland with house-wrecking winds.

In true blizzard fashion, temperatures tumbled towards zero levels as the snows moved in.

Snows were up to 14 inches deep in the Montana mountains. At least four deaths were blamed on the mounting storm.

At Rapid City, S.D., smack in the heart of the snow belt, the temperature stood at 13 and the snow was mounting into high drifts.

Air travel was grounded in South Dakota's Black Hills. The snow was up to nine inches deep in the western part of the state.

The snows ranged eastward and socked Wisconsin with its first big storm of the season. The wet, heavy snow was four to five inches deep in northeast Wisconsin and driving was hazardous.

The storm front drove into Indiana, where high winds in Indianapolis sent a shoe store sign crashing down on a 78-year-old woman. A tree toppled into a power line, cutting off power to homes in the neighborhood for more than an hour.

The storm hit with shattering impact in the Southland. Winds caved in the ceiling of a third grade classroom at Belzoni, Miss., but the children escaped injury, and 69-mile-per-hour winds did an estimated $2,000 damage in northern Louisiana.

Ben-Gurion Party Increases Strength

JERUSALEM, ISRAEL —(UPI) David Ben-Gurion's Mapai (labor) Party emerged Wednesday from Israel's fourth general elections stronger than at any time since it took control of the government a decade ago.

Official returns, complete except for those from the army, gave the Mapai 38.5 per cent of Tuesday's vote and increased its holdings in the 120-seat Knesset (parliament) from 40 to 47 seats, plus three more for Mapai Arab candidates

Britain Opens Door To Wealth Of U.S. Goods

LONDON (AP)—Britain is opening the door to a glittering array of American goods. Almost all remaining quotas on imports from the dollar area and from Western Europe will be removed Nov. 9.

This means 300 to 500 million dollars extra in American goods will be sold in Britain yearly, trade experts estimated.

Reginald Maudling, president of Britain's Board of Trade, announced Wednesday the abolition of quota controls as one of a series of actions dismantling Britain's wartime financial and commercial controls.

He said Britain is able to take the step because of its present favorable balance of trade and the strength of the pound sterling.

Although quota restrictions are coming off most imports, tariffs will stay on. So the new American goods will sell for more than most British-made articles.

Even so, many British women are expected to make sacrifices to get New York-styled cocktail dresses and casual wear, always popular here. Housewives will want to try widely heralded U. S. refrigerators, cosmetics, imitation jewelry, and certain foods.

There may even be an occasional buyer for a costly auto—although it will sell for considerably more than Britain's luxurious Rolls-Royce and Bentley limousines, which go for $15,000.

Other principal items freed from quota controls:

Machinery, electrical equipment scientific, industrial and optical instruments, cameras, textiles, gold and silver goods, cutlery, clocks and cigaret lighters.

Stockings, precious stones, paper, books, periodicals, dried fruit, ash trays, heavy chain, oil, worked stone and slate, calcium carbide, diamond dies, glass fiber, earth-moving machinery, wire cloth, lace, toys and games, fresh and frozen salmon, fruit juices other than grapefruit and orange juice.

Cuban President Spikes Report Cienfuegos Found

HAVANA (UPI)—A Cuban army report that missing army commander Camilo Cienfuegos had been found alive brought throngs of rejoicing Cubans into the streets of Havana Wednesday night. But their joy was short-lived.

Shortly afterward, Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos issued a declaration saying the report that the army chief had been rescued was premature. He advised the street crowds to go home and wait for an official report.

But thousands of Havana citizens who had poured out into the streets like a giant tidal wave refused to comply with the request. Disappointed demonstrators marched to the presidential palace where they attacked with stones and clubs a loudspeaker truck that had been announcing Dorticos' statement.

The street celebrations had been touched off when Cuban army officials announced that Maj. Cienfuegos, who vanished mysteriously on an airplane flight a week ago, had been found alive near Key Largo, off Cuba's southern coast.

The army report had said that Cienfuegos and two soldier companions, pilot Lt. Luciano Farinas and Pvt. Felix Rodrigues, had been found by a motor launch at Cienaga de Zapata, a swamp area 190 miles southeast of Havana.

But later in the afternoon, President Dorticos announced from the presidential palace that "there is no official report that army commander Camilo Cienfuegos had been found."

Store Owner Paid For Plugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Allentown, Pa., department store owner told congressional investigators Wednesday night that he has made numerous payments to get advertising plugs for his store on television shows and by newspaper columnists.

Max Hess said he paid to get on the Kate Smith television show and the television show featuring mind-reader Dunninger.

He said he made so many payments for plugs on TV shows and by newspaper columnists that he couldn't remember them all.

This is common practice—paying to get plugs, he said.

Without specifying the purpose, he said, he made payments of $1,000 each to columnists Bob Considine and to Jack O'Brian.

Asked what the payments to O'Brian and to Considine were for, Hess replied that each of them had "come up to the store and made a visit. It was good will."

Considine is a columnist for the King Features Syndicate. O'Brian is a TV columnist for the New York Journal-American.

Hess was summoned before the House subcommittee investigating rigged TV shows for questioning about a $10,000 payment he admitted making to get an employe on the "$64,000 Question" quiz program as a contestant for the publicity value.

He also said the union and industry bargaining teams seemed preoccupied with the forthcoming Supreme Court ruling on the legality of a Taft - Hartley injunction ordering the 500,000 strikers back to work for 80 days.

"Our mediation sessions are independent of the court," Finnegan said, "but naturally everybody has their eyes focused on the nation's highest tribunal."

The court, which heard four hours of arguments on the injunction issue Tuesday, was expected to hand down its decision late this week or early next. It never before has ruled on the constitutionality of a Taft - Hartley injunction.

Meanwhile, President Eisenhower was asked at his news conference if he planned to call a special session of Cangress if the high court voids the back-to-work order against the Steelworkers.

"I don't believe I'd better answer any 'iffy' questions on this," he replied. "This is very emotional. It is very serious, and I think we will just have to wait and see what the answer is."

In suspending the negotiations, Finnegan made plain the bargaining teams would remain subject to recall as soon as they resolve the wide difference between their estimates of the costs of their proposals.

Finnegan said he hoped for a resumption of bargaining Friday.

Israel, U.A.R. Jets Tangle Over Negev

JERUSALEM (Israeli Sector) (UPI)—Israeli jets fought a short sharp air battle with United Arab Republic MIG-17 jets Wednesday 25,000 feet above the Negev desert, a military spokesman said.

The Israeli spokesman said the clash took place inside Israel's airspace. He said the Israeli fighters drove off four Communist-made MIGS and returned safely to base without losses.

(The Cairo spokesman said there were two clashes and that both of them occurred over Egyptian territory).

The Israeli military spokesman said the four U.A.R. MIGs swept in from the direction of the Sinai peninsula and flew over the central Negev area, some 12 to 18 miles inside the Israeli border.

He said that Israeli fighters intercepted the MIGs and a "short air battle" took place.

The U.A.R. jets were routed, the spokesman said.

He announced that Israeli had lodged a complaint with the United Nations Emergency Force over the incident.

Pilot Lone Survivor Of Two-Plane Crash

BINGHAM, Maine (AP) — An Air Force pilot walked out of the mountainous wilderness Wednesday, apparently the sole survivor of a two-plane aerial collision in which a second man was killed and a third is missing.

Lt. Frederick M. Johnson, 22, Chicago, parachuted into a tree, spent the night there and came out Wednesday morning to a lumber camp. He appeared little hurt.

The Air Force said a T33 trainer towing a target on a radar practice mission collided Tuesday night with an F102 fighter.

Bomber Falls Into Gulf; One Rescued, 3 Missing

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—A 2½-million-dollar jet bomber with four men aboard plunged into the Gulf of Mexico during a training exercise Wednesday. A helicopter pilot rescued the navigator but the three others were missing.

An Air Force - Coast Guard search started before dawn over an area about 100 miles southwest of Tampa and about 70 miles out to sea.

The crash was the fourth in 11 months for the six-jet B47s from MacDill Air Force Base, Tampa. The Air Force said a board had started an investigation to determine the cause.

Officials said the plane—one of 45 from the Strategic Air Command's 306th Bomb Wing—went down at 4:19 a.m., one hour and 19 minutes after takeoff.

Lt. Franklin Delano Harrod, Hattiesburg, Miss., told newsmen he bailed out on instructions from the aircraft commander.

"I didn't see any other parachutes," Harrod said, "because in our method of bailing out we would be spaced a mile or two apart and it was pitch dark."

Listed as missing were Maj. Morris O. Beck, 38, aircraft commander, son of Mrs. Fern Beck, Amarillo, Tex.; Lt. George W. Eggleston, 24, copilot, son of Fred O. Eggleston, Charleston, W.Va.; and T.Sgt. Norman William Ruwe, 38, son of Ethel Ruwe, Lake Park, Iowa.

Shell Explodes Aboard Warship, Injuring Seven

NEWPORT, R.I. (UPI) — A three-inch shell exploded aboard the destroyer Willis A. Lee 35 miles at sea Wednesday, injuring seven men, one critically.

The Navy destroyer force headquarters here said the anti-aircraft shell exploded in a forward gunmount as it was being moved from a storage room in a projcetile hoist.

The Navy said one sailor was critically hurt.

Eight Youths Admit Slaying Negro Boy

CORINTH, MISS., (UPI)—Eight white teenagers have confessed to the shotgun killing of a Negro boy who was returning home from a Halloween party last Saturday night, police said Wednesday.

Officers said Darnell Glidwell, 17, admitted firing the gun that killed William Roy Prather, 15. No charges were filed against Glidwell and the seven other youths pending further investigation by local and state police.

The boys had been driving around town in a truck causing disturbances on Halloween night, officers said.

Police said one of the youths broke down under extensive questioning and implicated the others who also confessed.

Television Moppet Jet Age "Runaway"

WASHINGTON (AP) — Evelyn Rudie, 9, the impish "Eloise" of television acting fame, touched off a cross-country scramble Wednesday by disappearing from her Hollywood home and flying to Washington.

She got off a four-engine jet passenger plane at Baltimore's nearby Friendship International Airport with a tale of wanting to visit the White House and ask Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower to give her career a boost.

With the coolness of an old theater pro, the brown-eyed blonde stuck to this explanation:

"When I saw Mrs. Eisenhower in Washington last year, she told me that she and her grandchildren and the President enjoyed my acting so much. So I decided to talk with her and see if she couldn't help me get a part in a film or TV series."

She said she had broken open four piggy banks in her room, extracted $160 and bought her airline ticket last Monday when she and her mother, Mrs. Emery Bernauer, separated during a shopping trip.

Then, she went on, she telephoned for a taxicab before 6 a.m. Wednesday went to Los Angeles International Airport and boarded a plane.

Evelyn told newsmen she bought her ticket at an airline office in the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel after agreeing to meet her mother about an hour after they parted to perform separate shopping errands. They had parted in that manner before, she said, but not often.

The girl's father, police related, said he had taught the much-traveled youngster the details of making reservations, checking baggage through—the works.

Airlines officials confirmed that a girl had picked up the ticket for Evelyn's airplane seat. They said an advance call had been made by someone identifying herself as the girl's mother.

Capt. Carl Kunaniec of the Baltimore airport police said he was told that Los Angeles traced her through a check of Hollywood travel terminals. Kunaniec was asked to meet the plane when it arrived at the airport.

He did so and turned the girl over to Mrs. Jacob Mogelever, Chevy Chase, Md., a friend of the Bernauer family.

"Thank God, thank God," sobbed Mrs. Bernauer when told her daughter had safely arrived on the East Coast.

Blizzard-Like Storm Moving Into Midwest

By United Press International

A far-ranging wintry storm sent blizzard snows surging from the Rockies into the Middle West Wednesday night and hit the Southland with house-wrecking winds.

In true blizzard fashion, temperatures tumbled towards zero levels as the snows moved in.

Snows were up to 14 inches deep in the Montana mountains. At least four deaths were blamed on the mounting storm.

At Rapid City, S.D., smack in the heart of the snow belt, the temperature stood at 13 and the snow was mounting into high drifts.

Air travel was grounded in South Dakota's Black Hills. The snow was up to nine inches deep in the western part of the state.

The snows ranged eastward and socked Wisconsin with its first big storm of the season. The wet, heavy snow was four to five inches deep in northeast Wisconsin and driving was hazardous.

The storm front drove into Indiana, where high winds in Indianapolis sent a shoe store sign crashing down on a 78-year-old woman. A tree toppled into a power line, cutting off power to homes in the neighborhood for more than an hour.

The storm hit with shattering impact in the Southland. Winds caved in the ceiling of a third grade classroom at Belzoni, Miss., but the children escaped injury, and 69-mile-per-hour winds did an estimated $2,000 damage in northern Louisiana.

Ben-Gurion Party Increases Strength

JERUSALEM, ISRAEL —(UPI) David Ben-Gurion's Mapai (labor) Party emerged Wednesday from Israel's fourth general elections stronger than at any time since it took control of the government a decade ago.

Official returns, complete except for those from the army, gave the Mapai 38.5 per cent of Tuesday's vote and increased its holdings in the 120-seat Knesset (parliament) from 40 to 47 seats, plus three more for Mapai Arab candidates

Britain Opens Door To Wealth Of U.S. Goods

LONDON (AP)—Britain is opening the door to a glittering array of American goods. Almost all remaining quotas on imports from the dollar area and from Western Europe will be removed Nov. 9.

This means 300 to 500 million dollars extra in American goods will be sold in Britain yearly, trade experts estimated.

Reginald Maudling, president of Britain's Board of Trade, announced Wednesday the abolition of quota controls as one of a series of actions dismantling Britain's wartime financial and commercial controls.

He said Britain is able to take the step because of its present favorable balance of trade and the strength of the pound sterling.

Although quota restrictions are coming off most imports, tariffs will stay on. So the new American goods will sell for more than most British-made articles.

Even so, many British women are expected to make sacrifices to get New York-styled cocktail dresses and casual wear, always popular here. Housewives will want to try widely heralded U. S. refrigerators, cosmetics, imitation jewelry, and certain foods.

There may even be an occasional buyer for a costly auto—although it will sell for considerably more than Britain's luxurious Rolls-Royce and Bentley limousines, which go for $15,000.

Other principal items freed from quota controls:

Machinery, electrical equipment scientific, industrial and optical instruments, cameras, textiles, gold and silver goods, cutlery, clocks and cigaret lighters.

Stockings, precious stones, paper, books, periodicals, dried fruit, ash trays, heavy chain, oil, worked stone and slate, calcium carbide, diamond dies, glass fiber, earth-moving machinery, wire cloth, lace, toys and games, fresh and frozen salmon, fruit juices other than grapefruit and orange juice.

Cuban President Spikes Report Cienfuegos Found

HAVANA (UPI)—A Cuban army report that missing army commander Camilo Cienfuegos had been found alive brought throngs of rejoicing Cubans into the streets of Havana Wednesday night. But their joy was short-lived.

Shortly afterward, Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos issued a declaration saying the report that the army chief had been rescued was premature. He advised the street crowds to go home and wait for an official report.

But thousands of Havana citizens who had poured out into the streets like a giant tidal wave refused to comply with the request. Disappointed demonstrators marched to the presidential palace where they attacked with stones and clubs a loudspeaker truck that had been announcing Dorticos' statement.

The street celebrations had been touched off when Cuban army officials announced that Maj. Cienfuegos, who vanished mysteriously on an airplane flight a week ago, had been found alive near Key Largo, off Cuba's southern coast.

The army report had said that Cienfuegos and two soldier companions, pilot Lt. Luciano Farinas and Pvt. Felix Rodrigues, had been found by a motor launch at Cienaga de Zapata, a swamp area 190 miles southeast of Havana.

But later in the afternoon, President Dorticos announced from the presidential palace that "there is no official report that army commander Camilo Cienfuegos had been found."

Store Owner Paid For Plugs

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An Allentown, Pa., department store owner told congressional investigators Wednesday night that he has made numerous payments to get advertising plugs for his store on television shows and by newspaper columnists.

Max Hess said he paid to get on the Kate Smith television show and the television show featuring mind-reader Dunninger.

He said he made so many payments for plugs on TV shows and by newspaper columnists that he couldn't remember them all.

This is common practice—paying to get plugs, he said.

Without specifying the purpose, he said, he made payments of $1,000 each to columnists Bob Considine and to Jack O'Brian.

Asked what the payments to O'Brian and to Considine were for, Hess replied that each of them had "come up to the store and made a visit. It was good will."

Considine is a columnist for the King Features Syndicate. O'Brian is a TV columnist for the New York Journal-American.

Hess was summoned before the House subcommittee investigating rigged TV shows for questioning about a $10,000 payment he admitted making to get an employe on the "$64,000 Question" quiz program as a contestant for the publicity value.

Off-Year Elections Follow Form Sheet

WASHINGTON (UPI) Democrats came through Tuesday's elections with the show of strength that had been anticipated. But Republicans found some consolation in municipal form sheet.

The biggest Democratic victories were the election of a Democratic governor of Kentucky, the crushing defeat of Harold E. Stassen in the Philadelphia mayoralty race, and a sweep of Indiana municipal contests.

Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler said the 1959 elections "demonstrate the vigorous good health of the Democratic Party as it prepares for the momentous campaign of 1960."

He said the Democrats' showing could be attributed to "good candidates, good party leadership, and effective party organization."

But Republican National Chairman Thruston B. Morton said he thought "Republicans have every reason to look forward confidently toward 1960."

He said the GOP analysis of the election disclosed "modest Republican gains" in New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Ohio. He said the balloting was "roughly a standoff in Connecticut."

Morton, who is also a senator from Kentucky, said that in his own state, "an expected Democratic split did not materialize and the Democrats won the election according to form."

In Kentucky, Democrat Bert T. Combs easily defeated former Republican Rep. John M. Robsion Jr., despite opposition to Combs by retiring Gov. A. B. (Happy) Chandler.

Combs' election apparently dashed Chandler's hopes of going to the 1960 Democratic convention as Kentucky's favorite son candidate for the party's presidential nomination.

In Philadelphia, incumbent Democratic Mayor Richardson Dilworth easily won reelection over Stassen, the former Minnesota governor who unsuccessfully sought the GOP nomination for president in 1948 and 1952 and for governor of Pennsylvania in 1958.

In Indiana, Democratic candidates won all but one of the mayoralty elections in the 25 largest cities. They replaced Republicans in Fort Wayne, Lafayette and Columbus and retained the mayor's office in Indianapolis, Gary, and South Bend, among others.

In New Jersey, the Democrats retained control of the lower house of the state Legislature, but failed to oust Republicans from control of the senate.

Democrats retained control, as expected, of the legislatures in Kentucky, Virginia, and Mississippi. Democrat Ross Barnett was elected governor of Mississippi without opposition.

The chief Republican victory was in Columbus, Ohio, where a Democratic mayor was unseated. Republicans replaced Democratic mayors in Massilon, Niles and Elyria.

'Laxity' Blamed For Patuxent Mass Escape

BALTIMORE (AP) — A consultant on prisons has blamed the mass escape from the Patuxent Institution at Jessup last April on "laxity and incompetence of employes in charge of two day rooms."

The consultant, Sanford Bates, made that statement Wednesday in a report requested by the State Board of Correction after 34 prisoners made a mass break April 5.

His wide-ranging report on Patuxent was highly critical, though he said the institution for defective delinquents "has some brilliant possibilities" and many employes are "loyal, conscientious and courageous individuals."

The two day rooms Bates referred to were the ones where the 34 prisoners were located. He also said the escape was not because of defects in construction of the institution.

The consultant mentioned a "lack of harmonious concurrent administration of the institution" between Director Harold M. Boslow and the Department of Correction and said Patuxent should be "subject to the same oversight and control as the other correctional institutions."

"If it turns out that present personnel of the institution are unwilling or unable to carry on such cooperation," Bates wrote, "it might well be necessary to suggest replacement of some of the personnel."

A second report on Maryland's prison situation as a whole supported a recommendation by Superintendent of Prisons James W. Curran that a medium security prison with a capacity of 1,000 be constructed in the state.

Woman Bank Bandit Seized

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (UPI) — An unarmed gray-haired divorcee wearing a bright green skirt held up a bank here Wednesday but was arrested by police 20 minutes later.

"I want to go to prison," Mrs. Irene Collier told officers when they took her into custody. "I'm the one who robbed the bank."

At almost the very instant Mrs. Collier was being arrested, her daughter was on the telephone to the Kansas City Kansan placing a classified ad asking for information about her mother who had been missing for about two weeks.

Mrs. Collier had $466 in her pocketbook when arrested, the exact amount taken from the bank.

Officers said she was a former mental patient.

Officers at the Home State Bank said the woman walked up to a teller's cage and told him: "Hand over your bills." The teller complied, then pressed his foot-operated holdup alarm. The woman walked out of the bank and disappeared in the noontime crowd.

She was picked up a block away. Officers had little difficulty identifying her as the robber because of her bright green skirt.

Death Claims Two Demo Members Of U.S. House

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Steven V. Carter (D-Iowa) died Wednesday after a stubborn 10-month long fight against cancer. He was 44.

The first-term Democrat drew nationwide attention shortly after taking office in January by hiring his young son to work on his staff at an annual salary of $11,873. He later cut this to $6,402.

Special elections will be held to fill both seats.

During the controversy over nepotism, Carter said his 19-year-old son, Steven Anthony, carried the brunt of his work load while he was hospitalized. Young Carter also attended George Washington University as a prelaw student while working in his dad's office.

There is nothing illegal about the employment of relatives by persons on government payrolls.

Gave Orders

not say specifically that the CBS network knew of the practice.

Martin Revson's denials that his firm knew at the time that the show was rigged brought expressions of disbelief and talk of possible perjury prosecution from two members of the subcommittee.

Rep. Steven B .Derounian (R-NY) said he hopes that "maybe the attorney general will look into this."

Derounian and Rep. John B. Bennett (R-Mich) said there were conflicts between Revson's testimony and an affadavit given the subcommittee by George Abrams former advertising chief for Revson in the Revlon Cosmetics Corp.

"I never directed or suggested that any contestant be removed from the show by giving him a hard question," Revson told the subcommittee.

Abrams said in his affidavit that if a contestant captured the public fancy, it was the consensus that he should continue.

"If he was dull, we would suggest to the producer that it would be desirable that the contestant not continue in the future," Arams added.

Abrams said the technique for "controlling the destiny" of a contestant was to ask real braintwisters or easy questions, based on what the producers had learned in screening candidates for the "$64,000 Question" and "$64,000 Challenge."

Accounts of rigging along those general lines had been related Tuesday by Steven R. Carlin and Mert Koplin, two of the producers who created the shows that were pulled off the air last year when word got around that popular network quiz contests were fixed.

Ex-Newspaperman Apparent Suicide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Timbers Riley, 34, a former newspaperman, was found shot to death Tuesday in his hotel room.

Police said he checked in Monday night and was not known to have been seen again until a maid found the body on the floor with a rifle nearby.

A note indicated he had been despondent over ill health, police said.

He once worked for the old Times-Herald here. In recent years he had been living in New York.

Atlas, Jupiter Missiles Tested

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two big American military rockets were test-fired over long ranges Wednesday and complete success was claimed for one that traveled a 4,800-mile course.

The Atlas — an 85-foot rocket slated for a moon satellite shoot later this month—roared aloft at 4:37 p.m. About four hours later the Air Force in Washington announced satisfactory performance at inter-continental range.

The intermediate range Jupiter blasted off Wednesday night on a test flight of about 1,500 miles. There was no immediate report on its performance.

The Air Force said the Atlas re-entry vehicle landed in the target area near Ascension Island in the South Atlantic and preliminary reports indicated all the missile systems functioned satisfactorily. It was the 10th consecutive flight for the Atlas since July 21.

Mrs. Collier had $466 in her pocketbook when arrested, the exact amount taken from the bank.

Officers said she was a former mental patient.

Officers at the Home State Bank said the woman walked up to a teller's cage and told him: "Hand over your bills." The teller complied, then pressed his foot-operated holdup alarm. The woman walked out of the bank and disappeared in the noontime crowd.

She was picked up a block away. Officers had little difficulty identifying her as the robber because of her bright green skirt.

Death Claims Two Demo Members Of U.S. House

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Steven V. Carter (D-Iowa) died Wednesday after a stubborn 10-month long fight against cancer. He was 44.

The first-term Democrat drew nationwide attention shortly after taking office in January by hiring his young son to work on his staff at an annual salary of $11,873. He later cut this to $6,402.

Special elections will be held to fill both seats.

During the controversy over nepotism, Carter said his 19-year-old son, Steven Anthony, carried the brunt of his work load while he was hospitalized. Young Carter also attended George Washington University as a prelaw student while working in his dad's office.

There is nothing illegal about the employment of relatives by persons on government payrolls.

Gave Orders

not say specifically that the CBS network knew of the practice.

Martin Revson's denials that his firm knew at the time that the show was rigged brought expressions of disbelief and talk of possible perjury prosecution from two members of the subcommittee.

Rep. Steven B .Derounian (R-NY) said he hopes that "maybe the attorney general will look into this."

Derounian and Rep. John B. Bennett (R-Mich) said there were conflicts between Revson's testimony and an affadavit given the subcommittee by George Abrams former advertising chief for Revson in the Revlon Cosmetics Corp.

"I never directed or suggested that any contestant be removed from the show by giving him a hard question," Revson told the subcommittee.

Abrams said in his affidavit that if a contestant captured the public fancy, it was the consensus that he should continue.

"If he was dull, we would suggest to the producer that it would be desirable that the contestant not continue in the future," Arams added.

Abrams said the technique for "controlling the destiny" of a contestant was to ask real braintwisters or easy questions, based on what the producers had learned in screening candidates for the "$64,000 Question" and "$64,000 Challenge."

Accounts of rigging along those general lines had been related Tuesday by Steven R. Carlin and Mert Koplin, two of the producers who created the shows that were pulled off the air last year when word got around that popular network quiz contests were fixed.

Ex-Newspaperman Apparent Suicide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Timbers Riley, 34, a former newspaperman, was found shot to death Tuesday in his hotel room.

Police said he checked in Monday night and was not known to have been seen again until a maid found the body on the floor with a rifle nearby.

A note indicated he had been despondent over ill health, police said.

He once worked for the old Times-Herald here. In recent years he had been living in New York.

Anderson will represent tthe United States in the talks at Camp David, President Eisenhower's hideaway in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland. Four Canadian cabinet members will speak for Canada.

Atlas, Jupiter Missiles Tested

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Two big American military rockets were test-fired over long ranges Wednesday and complete success was claimed for one that traveled a 4,800-mile course.

The Atlas — an 85-foot rocket slated for a moon satellite shoot later this month—roared aloft at 4:37 p.m. About four hours later the Air Force in Washington announced satisfactory performance at inter-continental range.

The intermediate range Jupiter blasted off Wednesday night on a test flight of about 1,500 miles. There was no immediate report on its performance.

The Air Force said the Atlas re-entry vehicle landed in the target area near Ascension Island in the South Atlantic and preliminary reports indicated all the missile systems functioned satisfactorily. It was the 10th consecutive flight for the Atlas since July 21.

Mexican Town Turned Into Cemetery By Mudslide That Buried 400

EDITOR'S NOTE: A Mexican peasant reverently removed his hat today as he passed a chapel. He was walking on top of it. This is Minatitlan, a town turned into a cemetery by a mudslide. UPI Correspondent Martin Houseman, first press association man on the scene, describes the miniature Pompeii in the following dispatch.

By MARTIN HOUSEMAN

MINATITLAN, Mexico (UPI)—The living are walking dead in Minatitlan. The dead were buried alive.

The smell of death is everywhere and those who still are here hold their hands over their faces to ward off the stench. The mining town is a mud wallow, almost wiped out in a terrifying roar at 5:30 a.m. a week ago. Cloudbursts loosened the slopes of Los Copales mountains and sent walls of water and mud thundering down to smear it off the map.

The grave diggers gave up. Nature had done their job too well.

"What's the use of digging them out from under 15 feet of mud only to bury them under six feet of dirt?" asked Maj. Andres Coamu, commander of the Mexican government rescue team.

"The rest of the dead must lie in peace where they are."

Crushed In Mud

There were 1,374 people in the pleasant mountain town nestled in a ravine under two interlocking mountains. Now there are fewer than 900, and 100 of them are badly hurt. The other 400 were crushed in their homes or smothered in the mud.

The survivors move like zombies or sleep walkers through what were the streets. None can give a coherent account of what happened.

They are suffering from influenza, diarrhea and skin ailments. Mexican relief teams feed them corn meal and canned milk. They accept it without thanks, faces blank.

Many cross themselves and say it was a miracle they lived. There was no warning.

Houses crumbled or vanished in an instant under tons of muck. The stores and the city hall, brick buildings, the pride of the people, were smashed. Houses that still stand are awash in slithery mud.

Some Bitterness

It is warm in Minatitlan. In the blue sky the buzzards have been flying. At night, it gets cold but there are blankets and tents flown in. There is no money. There is some bitterness.

"We will plant corn same as always next May," says Juan Dominquez. "We should have a great crop with so many to fertilize the soil."

Many, though, just say the good Lord took care of them. The church in town escaped severe damage although the priest's rectory next door was swept away. The priest lived because he was away, praying with a parishioner.

The army garrison perished save for two men. One lieutenant was found alive, buried up to his neck in mud. Another soldier was washed 300 yards in a sea of mud and lived to tell about it. There is talk of miracles.

Tells Of Escape

Guadalupe Rodriguez, a farmer, holds his hands over his nose against the sickening odor as he tells how he escaped with his wife and six children.

The water came pouring in, rain like a river down the mountain before the mud came.

They ran and ran through waist deep water. Neighbors saw the terror coming and fled, too. Some clung to a tree until it was thrown into the torrent.

"These tiles we were walking on," he says, "are the roofs of houses beneath us."

On the mud that once had been a road he stops and pulls off his sombrero.

Chapel Also Buried

"Take off your hat, too, Amigo. We are passing St. Theresa Chapel." His voice is reverent. But there is no chapel there. It is buried in the greasy clay.

The survivors are stoic. They never have known electricity or potable water or scientific sewage disposal. The lack of it now does not bother them.

They are thankful for one thing. The swarms of tarantulas and scorpions jarred from their nests by the slides have gone.

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN: I've been a mother for six years and believe me, motherhood is not what it's cracked up to be.

My problem is six years of age. He is driving me crazy. When he was born he was a breech birth. Then he had colic for six months. It seems he has caused us nothing but trouble from the day he was born. He dislikes adults and can't get along with children.

When he was three he hit my best friend's little girl in the face with a toy rake. She still carries the scar. We are no longer friends.

The first week of school my son's teacher came to see me at the house. She said in her 31 years of teaching she has never seen such an unruly child. He refuses to listen, won't follow directions, bothers the other children and disrupts the class.

My husband and I fight constantly about the boy. He says I'm too hard on him. The neighbors say I'm too soft. I know something is wrong but I don't know what it is. Please answer in the paper. If my husband knew I was writing to you he'd break my neck. FLOP OF A MOTHER

DEAR FLOP: You start your letter by criticizing the boy because he was a breech birth (born feet first) and then because he suffered colic — as if he did it out of spite.

If you'll examine your heart you'll find you didn't want this child to begin with. The results of your hostility are manifested in his aggressive and rebellious personality.

You need outside help at once. Your family doctor will recommend a specialist in the field of child behavior. Unless this boy gets professional guidance he's in for a lifetime of trouble.

DEAR ANN: My steady boy friend says if I go out for cheerleader next week he and I are through. I've always wanted to be a cheer-leader and think I have a good chance.

The trouble is the cheer leaders wear pleated skirts that hit above the knee. He says it's indecent and he's not going to have his steady appear "half naked" before the school. My father who is a clergyman says Lee is off his noodle and that the costumes are cute.

I hate to lose this fellow. He's got lots of good qualities, but I don't want to give in on this. Please advise. GO TEAM

DEAR GO: If the school authorities have okayed the costume your boy friend should have no beefs. He's being inconsiderate and selfish.

(P. S. The current fashions are almost up there right now!)

DEAR ANN: Call me a bum sport, a poor loser or just plain cheap. Anyway I need some advice.

Four of us fellows match coins to see who pays for the coffee during our breaks. I lose four times out of five and I can't figure it out. I don't know how the flip can be rigged, but the law of averages says I should do better than this.

I'm getting tired of being the sucker but I don't know how to get off the spot. Help! Help!

CHUMPEROONIE

DEAR CHUMPEROONIE: I don't know what the gimmick is either, but I do know that you can just say "no more flipping" and pay for your own coffee.

Are your parents to strict? You can benefit from the experiences of thousands of teen-agers if you read ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Gov. Tawes Says Surplus Can't Become 'Grab Bag'

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. Tawes said Wednesday night his administration "cannot stand by in complacency and let an anticipated budget surplus become a grab bag for various pressure groups competing for state funds."

Tawes said, however, the administration "has no intention of sacrificing needed state reforms to a narrow-minded obsession with dollar signs and balance sheets."

"Such an approach would be penny wise and dollar foolish and could only lead to an eventual stagnation of progress of the state," the governor told a United Democratic Women's Club dinner.

Tawes, in his prepared text, said the state's present rosy fiscal picture "calls for broad vision."

The state, he said, must "achieve the correct relationship between our ability to make increased budgetary commitments now and the need to avoid programs that inevitably will call for additional taxes two or three years from now."

Tawes said he has "numerous demands from various agencies of the state for increased budget allotments for the forthcoming fiscal year." They are from teachers, classified state employes, mental institutions and others.

"It will not be an easy task to reconcile the needs of today with the revenues of tomorrow," Tawes said. "I have little hope that the delicate decisions to be made will please everyone."

Discussing the state's obligation in helping Baltimore City out of its budgetary problems, Tawes said:

"It is my belief that the state can be most effective here in contributing the leadership and assistance for a permanent solution to the problem rather than becoming embroiled in stopgap and temporary fiscal arrangments."

Tawes said he believes the long-range solution lies in developing a workable metropolitan plan for the Baltimore area.

Noting that one year ago the Democratic party won a sweeping victory in Maryland, the governor told the women the 1960 election is "an exceedingly important" one for the party.

"We in Maryland have no governor to elect and no U.S. senator to elect, but we do have the task of re-electing our all-Democratic congressional delegation," he said.

"Above all, we have the task of placing Maryland once again in the Democratic column in the election of a president of the United States."

Budget Boost Sought

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP) — A $39,100,000 budget has been proposed by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for next year. This is $4,000,000 more than this year's budget.

The departments of Commerce and Labor were originally one. They were divided by an act of Congress in 1913.

Cook Convicted Of Slaying Cop At Second Trial

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—A 38-year-old Negro cook was convicted of first degree murder Wednesday at his retrial on a charge of fatally shooting a Salisbury policeman.

Judges McMaster Duer and Godfrey Child delayed sentencing to give defense counsel an opportunity to ask for a new trial.

As there was no recommendation by the jurors for mercy, Brown could be sentenced to death in the gas chamber.

Brown was charged with shooting Patrolman Henry Stephens in a Salisbury alley near police headquarters Sept. 6, 1958. He was arrested a few blocks away shortly after the shooting.

The shooting took place while Stephens was escorting Brown to police headquarters after arresting him on a charge of forging and uttering a worthless check.

Brown's first trial was shifted to Dorchester County Circuit Court from Salisbury at the request of Brown's attorneys. On Nov. 20, 1958, Brown was convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to die in the gas chamber.

However, the Maryland Court of Appeals last May 9 granted the defendant a new trial after ruling that the two judges hearing the case should have questioned each juror about any racial prejudice which might influence their verdict.

Brown's attorneys then tried unsuccessfully to have the second trial shifted to the First Judicial Circuit on grounds that publicity would prevent a fair trial on the Eastern Shore.

The second trial began Tuesday morning and ended early Wednesday afternoon. Afterward, Brown was taken back to the Salisbury jail.

His attorneys have three days in which to request a new trial.

Youth Killed By Car

WORTON, Md. (AP) — Charles Lee Cranfill Jr., 15, of Worton, was struck and killed by an automobile Tuesday night while walking along Maryland 297 near this Kent County town.

The driver, Mrs. Ursula A. Nickerson, 36, of Worton, told State Police she saw Cranfill's companion, Robert C. Bloomer, 15, who was wearing a white jacket. Lights of an approaching car blinded her and she didn't notice Cranfill, who was wearing dark clothes, police said.

NATIONAL POSTER CHILD—Mary Beth Pyron, of Florence, Ala., named yesterday as the 1960 March of Dimes National Poster Child, is shown in an easy chair in the Hotel Astor at New York. The 2½-year-old child, who can't walk or stand, was selected by the National Foundation to symbolize the millions of handicapped children and adults whom the foundation seeks to aid through an expanded program. State Tobacco Inspector Quits

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Walter W. Bowling Sr. handed his resignation as state tobacco inspector to Gov. Tawes Wednesday saying he did so "in all fairness to you and to the public."

In his letter to the governor, the Charles County tobacco grower said he had filled his position "without any personal gain to myself."

He said he engaged in buying and selling tobacco during his term, but denied he ever dealt in tobacco transactions on the Baltimore market. He said he bought tobacco locally in Southern Maryland and shipped it to Baltimore for sale.

The demand for his resignation had been pressed by Hyman Pressman, Baltimore attorney.

"I would like further to make it clear," Bowling said in his letter, "that at the time Mr. Hyman Pressman accused me, in the press, of having 190,000 pounds of my own tobacco in the state warehouse in the names of my son, my tenant and myself, I have less than 25,000 pounds."

"If my appointment under the circumstances as now developed has in any way reflected on your good judgment and fine administration, I am most regretful," Bowling wrote Tawes.

At an informal hearing with Bowling Monday, Tawes said it was apparent Bowling had been in violation of the law which prohibits a tobacco inspector from engaging in the purchase or sale of the leaf, excepting that which he grew himself.

Crash Report Stirs Futile Search

HOOPERSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Searchers failed to find anything Wednesday after following up reports that a small plane had crashed near this Dorchester County community.

The Coast Guard at Norfolk recalled all but one patrol boat from the area after failing to turn up any trace of wreckage. Earlier, a Coast Guard patrol boat sent in a report that a plane was down, but there was no confirmation of this.

Several fires were touched off in fields and woods near Hoopersville, apparently caused by flares dropped from planes Tuesday night.

The flares were sighted by three fishermen, including Ira Sarge Johnson, a deputy sheriff. He notified Sheriff Calvert Creighton at Cambridge and the search was ordered.

Four planes and two patrol boats scoured the Chesapeake Bay area off Hoopers Island, but abandoned the search early Wednesday. The search resumed at dawn and was accelerated after initial reports that a light plane was sighted.

The sheriff's office said several small parachutes were found in the Hoopersville area, apparently use in connection with the flares.

No installations in the area reported any planes missing.

Pedestrian Safety Seminar Slated

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP) — The pedestrian and ways of keeping him alive will be studied at a safety seminar at the State Police Academy here Nov. 10.

Superintendent Carey Jarman said Wednesday the conference will be sponsored by the Automobile Club of Maryland and the District of Columbia Division of the American Automobile Assn. in cooperation with the Maryland State Police.

Maj. George E. Davidson, field force commander, will be in charge of the seminar called to bring together officials who have the same pedestrian safety problems and to provide an exchange of ideas.

Fred R. Ullrich, president of the Automobile Club of Maryland, and Glenn T. Leshley, manager of the AAA's national pedestrian program will speak at the morning sessions.

The afternoon session will include a group discussion on school child pedestrian safety and community pedestrian efforts.

Gov. Tawes Says Surplus Can't Become 'Grab Bag'

BALTIMORE (AP)—Gov. Tawes said Wednesday night his administration "cannot stand by in complacency and let an anticipated budget surplus become a grab bag for various pressure groups competing for state funds."

Tawes said, however, the administration "has no intention of sacrificing needed state reforms to a narrow-minded obsession with dollar signs and balance sheets."

"Such an approach would be penny wise and dollar foolish and could only lead to an eventual stagnation of progress of the state," the governor told a United Democratic Women's Club dinner.

Tawes, in his prepared text, said the state's present rosy fiscal picture "calls for broad vision."

The state, he said, must "achieve the correct relationship between our ability to make increased budgetary commitments now and the need to avoid programs that inevitably will call for additional taxes two or three years from now."

Tawes said he has "numerous demands from various agencies of the state for increased budget allotments for the forthcoming fiscal year." They are from teachers, classified state employes, mental institutions and others.

"It will not be an easy task to reconcile the needs of today with the revenues of tomorrow," Tawes said. "I have little hope that the delicate decisions to be made will please everyone."

Discussing the state's obligation in helping Baltimore City out of its budgetary problems, Tawes said:

"It is my belief that the state can be most effective here in contributing the leadership and assistance for a permanent solution to the problem rather than becoming embroiled in stopgap and temporary fiscal arrangments."

Tawes said he believes the long-range solution lies in developing a workable metropolitan plan for the Baltimore area.

Noting that one year ago the Democratic party won a sweeping victory in Maryland, the governor told the women the 1960 election is "an exceedingly important" one for the party.

"We in Maryland have no governor to elect and no U.S. senator to elect, but we do have the task of re-electing our all-Democratic congressional delegation," he said.

"Above all, we have the task of placing Maryland once again in the Democratic column in the election of a president of the United States."

Budget Boost Sought

HYATTSVILLE, Md. (AP) — A $39,100,000 budget has been proposed by the Washington Suburban Sanitary Commission for next year. This is $4,000,000 more than this year's budget.

The departments of Commerce and Labor were originally one. They were divided by an act of Congress in 1913.

Cook Convicted Of Slaying Cop At Second Trial

CAMBRIDGE (AP)—A 38-year-old Negro cook was convicted of first degree murder Wednesday at his retrial on a charge of fatally shooting a Salisbury policeman.

A jury of three women and nine men, one a Negro, found Johnny Brown guilty after deliberating for about a half hour.

Judges McMaster Duer and Godfrey Child delayed sentencing to give defense counsel an opportunity to ask for a new trial.

As there was no recommendation by the jurors for mercy, Brown could be sentenced to death in the gas chamber.

Brown was charged with shooting Patrolman Henry Stephens in a Salisbury alley near police headquarters Sept. 6, 1958. He was arrested a few blocks away shortly after the shooting.

The shooting took place while Stephens was escorting Brown to police headquarters after arresting him on a charge of forging and uttering a worthless check.

Brown's first trial was shifted to Dorchester County Circuit Court from Salisbury at the request of Brown's attorneys. On Nov. 20, 1958, Brown was convicted of first degree murder and sentenced to die in the gas chamber.

However, the Maryland Court of Appeals last May 9 granted the defendant a new trial after ruling that the two judges hearing the case should have questioned each juror about any racial prejudice which might influence their verdict.

Brown's attorneys then tried unsuccessfully to have the second trial shifted to the First Judicial Circuit on grounds that publicity would prevent a fair trial on the Eastern Shore.

The second trial began Tuesday morning and ended early Wednesday afternoon. Afterward, Brown was taken back to the Salisbury jail.

His attorneys have three days in which to request a new trial.

Youth Killed By Car

WORTON, Md. (AP) — Charles Lee Cranfill Jr., 15, of Worton, was struck and killed by an automobile Tuesday night while walking along Maryland 297 near this Kent County town.

The driver, Mrs. Ursula A. Nickerson, 36, of Worton, told State Police she saw Cranfill's companion, Robert C. Bloomer, 15, who was wearing a white jacket. Lights of an approaching car blinded her and she didn't notice Cranfill, who was wearing dark clothes, police said.

NATIONAL POSTER CHILD—Mary Beth Pyron, of Florence, Ala., named yesterday as the 1960 March of Dimes National Poster Child, is shown in an easy chair in the Hotel Astor at New York. The 2½-year-old child, who can't walk or stand, was selected by the National Foundation to symbolize the millions of handicapped children and adults whom the foundation seeks to aid through an expanded program. State Tobacco Inspector Quits

ANNAPOLIS (AP)—Walter W. Bowling Sr. handed his resignation as state tobacco inspector to Gov. Tawes Wednesday saying he did so "in all fairness to you and to the public."

In his letter to the governor, the Charles County tobacco grower said he had filled his position "without any personal gain to myself."

He said he engaged in buying and selling tobacco during his term, but denied he ever dealt in tobacco transactions on the Baltimore market. He said he bought tobacco locally in Southern Maryland and shipped it to Baltimore for sale.

The demand for his resignation had been pressed by Hyman Pressman, Baltimore attorney.

"I would like further to make it clear," Bowling said in his letter, "that at the time Mr. Hyman Pressman accused me, in the press, of having 190,000 pounds of my own tobacco in the state warehouse in the names of my son, my tenant and myself, I have less than 25,000 pounds."

"If my appointment under the circumstances as now developed has in any way reflected on your good judgment and fine administration, I am most regretful," Bowling wrote Tawes.

At an informal hearing with Bowling Monday, Tawes said it was apparent Bowling had been in violation of the law which prohibits a tobacco inspector from engaging in the purchase or sale of the leaf, excepting that which he grew himself.

Crash Report Stirs Futile Search

HOOPERSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Searchers failed to find anything Wednesday after following up reports that a small plane had crashed near this Dorchester County community.

The Coast Guard at Norfolk recalled all but one patrol boat from the area after failing to turn up any trace of wreckage. Earlier, a Coast Guard patrol boat sent in a report that a plane was down, but there was no confirmation of this.

Several fires were touched off in fields and woods near Hoopersville, apparently caused by flares dropped from planes Tuesday night.

The flares were sighted by three fishermen, including Ira Sarge Johnson, a deputy sheriff. He notified Sheriff Calvert Creighton at Cambridge and the search was ordered.

Four planes and two patrol boats scoured the Chesapeake Bay area off Hoopers Island, but abandoned the search early Wednesday. The search resumed at dawn and was accelerated after initial reports that a light plane was sighted.

The sheriff's office said several small parachutes were found in the Hoopersville area, apparently use in connection with the flares.

No installations in the area reported any planes missing.

Pedestrian Safety Seminar Slated

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP) — The pedestrian and ways of keeping him alive will be studied at a safety seminar at the State Police Academy here Nov. 10.

Superintendent Carey Jarman said Wednesday the conference will be sponsored by the Automobile Club of Maryland and the District of Columbia Division of the American Automobile Assn. in cooperation with the Maryland State Police.

Maj. George E. Davidson, field force commander, will be in charge of the seminar called to bring together officials who have the same pedestrian safety problems and to provide an exchange of ideas.

Fred R. Ullrich, president of the Automobile Club of Maryland, and Glenn T. Leshley, manager of the AAA's national pedestrian program will speak at the morning sessions.

The afternoon session will include a group discussion on school child pedestrian safety and community pedestrian efforts.

State Legislative Unit Told Work On Route 40 May Take 15 Years

BALTIMORE (AP) — Chances of speeding up the program to improve U.S. 40 west of Hancock, Md., are virtually nil, a Legislative Council Committee was told Tuesday.

Why?

Because the most feasible method of accelerating the program would be to include it in the federal interstate highway system, and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads has not seen fit to do so, said Norman L. Pritchett, chief engineer of the State Roads Commission.

Pritchett told the council's Budget and Finance Committee that the designation of this stretch of Western Maryland highway as part of the interstate highway system would mean that the federal government would support 90 per cent of improvement costs and the State would foot the bill for 10 per cent.

Otherwise, private sources indicated, financial problems would delay completion of the program for about 15 years.

Pritchett said Maryland political and roads officials had repeatedly sought to have the 65-mile stretch of Maryland road included in the nationwide system.

"But both adjoining states must agree to such a proposal," he said, "and Pennsylvania has always refused to go along with us because they wanted to make sure that the Pennsylvania Turnpike was included."

"In other words," suggested Del. Jeome Robinson (D-Balto 4th), "it was a power struggle between Maryland and Pennsylvania and we lost out."

"That's right," said Pritchett.

The roads engineer told the committee that, in general, highway improvements in western Maryland were much costlier than those in less mountainous sections.

"For example," he said, "to improve a 1¼-mile stretch of U. S. 40 on Polish Mountain, we had to move 1½ million (cubic) yards of rock. The average is about 250,000 yards of dirt—not rock—per mile of road."

Chairman John B. Funk of the Roads Commission said the U. S. 40 case graphically illustrates a need for a new look at Maryland's 12-year road program, begun in 1952.

He specifically referred to a State law which requires the commission to complete a certain percentage of planned mileage in each county during each four-year phase of the program.

This provides that during the first four-year phase of the 12-year program—through 1956—the commission must have completed at least 95 per cent and not more than 105 per cent of the planned highway improvement mileage in each county. If these requirements were not met, the commission — during the next four-year phase— must have brought its completion record in each county to not less than 90 per cent nor more than 110 per cent of the planned mileage.

But the mileage percentage requirements, Funk indicated, are not realistic because they do not take into account the amount of money per mile which must be spent in counties of varying topography and construction costs.

Committee chairman A. Gordon Boone (D-Balto County) suggested that Funk and other commission officials explain the problem in greater detail before the full Legislative Council—interim screening arm of the Legislature next month, well in advance of the 30-day legislative session opening in February. Boone also suggested that the commission give its annual progress report to the Legislature early in February, giving the legislators adequate time to act on any changes the commission might recommend in the 12-year road plan.

In discussing a proposal to reconstruct the Potomac River bridge at Wiley Ford, W. Va., opposite Maryland, Funk said "again it's a question of money."

Del. Lester B. Reed (R-Allegany) asked whether "a sizable sum" had not been spent to repair the elderly span and whether it might not be more economical in the long run to rebuild it.

Funk noted that Maryland owns the Potomac to the southern shore.

"That's very good for oystering," he said, "but when it comes to building a bridge, it means we have to pay 80 to 90 per cent of the cost. And they (West Virginia) have shown a reluctance to go along for even the 10 or 20 per cent which would be their share."

The roads chairman said another bridge in the area seems to fill the needs of West Virginians making the river crossing.

Until West Virginia road officials want something Maryland can give, said Funk, the Free State is at a disadvantageous bargaining position on the Wiley Ford Bridge.

Somerset County Democrats Retain Positions

SOMERSET — Four incumbent Democratic office holders — the judge, sheriff, register of wills and one county commissioner — were returned to their posts in Tuesday's Somerset County election.

The Republicans, going into the election Tuesday with the smallest registration lead in modern times, a bare 1,388, salvaged two of three county commissionerships the clerk of courts and the district attorney.

Democrat Thomas F. Lansberry was returned to his second ten-year term as judge of the Court of Common Pleas by defeating Charles H. Coffroth, Somerset attorney, 15,538 to 13,640.

Sheriff Norman F. Walker won over his Republican opponent, Newton D. Picking, 16,610 to 12,797.

Register of Wills Paul L. O'Connor stood off the threat of Republican Albert E. Hay, Elk Lick Township, by polling 15,701 to 13,704.

Elected as county commissioners were Lewis A. Baumgardner, (R), Windber businessman, 15,224; Warren K. Hay, (D), farmer of Warren and Somerset townships, incumbent, 14,951; Mrs. Isabel Coleman Kline, (R), school secretary of Somerset RD 5, 14,183. Unsuccessful was Park Johnson, Shade Township salesman, 13,225.

Robert M. Keim (R), Somerset RD 6, won over Norman A. Shaulis (D), Somerset, for district attorney, 15,520 to 15,293.

Walter L. Williams (R), Boswell, defeated Robert Riley (D), co-owner of a Bakersville fish hatchery, 16,395 to 12,880 for clerk of courts.

State Legislative Unit Told Work On Route 40 May Take 15 Years

BALTIMORE (AP) — Chances of speeding up the program to improve U.S. 40 west of Hancock, Md., are virtually nil, a Legislative Council Committee was told Tuesday.

Why?

Because the most feasible method of accelerating the program would be to include it in the federal interstate highway system, and the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads has not seen fit to do so, said Norman L. Pritchett, chief engineer of the State Roads Commission.

Pritchett told the council's Budget and Finance Committee that the designation of this stretch of Western Maryland highway as part of the interstate highway system would mean that the federal government would support 90 per cent of improvement costs and the State would foot the bill for 10 per cent.

Otherwise, private sources indicated, financial problems would delay completion of the program for about 15 years.

Pritchett said Maryland political and roads officials had repeatedly sought to have the 65-mile stretch of Maryland road included in the nationwide system.

"But both adjoining states must agree to such a proposal," he said, "and Pennsylvania has always refused to go along with us because they wanted to make sure that the Pennsylvania Turnpike was included."

"In other words," suggested Del. Jeome Robinson (D-Balto 4th), "it was a power struggle between Maryland and Pennsylvania and we lost out."

"That's right," said Pritchett.

The roads engineer told the committee that, in general, highway improvements in western Maryland were much costlier than those in less mountainous sections.

"For example," he said, "to improve a 1¼-mile stretch of U. S. 40 on Polish Mountain, we had to move 1½ million (cubic) yards of rock. The average is about 250,000 yards of dirt—not rock—per mile of road."

Chairman John B. Funk of the Roads Commission said the U. S. 40 case graphically illustrates a need for a new look at Maryland's 12-year road program, begun in 1952.

He specifically referred to a State law which requires the commission to complete a certain percentage of planned mileage in each county during each four-year phase of the program.

This provides that during the first four-year phase of the 12-year program—through 1956—the commission must have completed at least 95 per cent and not more than 105 per cent of the planned highway improvement mileage in each county. If these requirements were not met, the commission — during the next four-year phase— must have brought its completion record in each county to not less than 90 per cent nor more than 110 per cent of the planned mileage.

But the mileage percentage requirements, Funk indicated, are not realistic because they do not take into account the amount of money per mile which must be spent in counties of varying topography and construction costs.

Committee chairman A. Gordon Boone (D-Balto County) suggested that Funk and other commission officials explain the problem in greater detail before the full Legislative Council—interim screening arm of the Legislature next month, well in advance of the 30-day legislative session opening in February. Boone also suggested that the commission give its annual progress report to the Legislature early in February, giving the legislators adequate time to act on any changes the commission might recommend in the 12-year road plan.

In discussing a proposal to reconstruct the Potomac River bridge at Wiley Ford, W. Va., opposite Maryland, Funk said "again it's a question of money."

Del. Lester B. Reed (R-Allegany) asked whether "a sizable sum" had not been spent to repair the elderly span and whether it might not be more economical in the long run to rebuild it.

Funk noted that Maryland owns the Potomac to the southern shore.

"That's very good for oystering," he said, "but when it comes to building a bridge, it means we have to pay 80 to 90 per cent of the cost. And they (West Virginia) have shown a reluctance to go along for even the 10 or 20 per cent which would be their share."

The roads chairman said another bridge in the area seems to fill the needs of West Virginians making the river crossing.

Until West Virginia road officials want something Maryland can give, said Funk, the Free State is at a disadvantageous bargaining position on the Wiley Ford Bridge.

Faster Survey Of Potomac Sought By State Group

BALTIMORE (AP)—A legislative committee yesterday urged Maryland's Congressmen to secure a federal appropriation that will enable the Army Corps of Engineers to complete its survey of the Potomac River basin at the earliest possible date and without any limitations.

The Legislative Council's Committee on the Potomac River Basin also recommended that the council approve proposed changes in the compact governing an interstate commission on the basin.

The revised compact would expand the scope of the Interstate Commission into the field of water resources and would remove the ceiling on financial contributions from member states.

The committee's third recommendation was that it be reappointed in 1960 to continue its studies of the river for the fifth year.

The committee report, presented to the council also took note of other problems for which it made no specific recommendation. One of these "unresolved problems" concerned the North Branch of the Potomac.

The committee noted that the area above Cumberland and Ridgeley, W. Va. was reviewed in an interim report to the larger study because of "the urgent need for improvements in the North Branch."

The recommendations called for three new dams—one on the Potomac above Bloomington, another on Stony River, and a second one on the Savage River. The committee said the Corps of Engineers' planning has now reached the stage where assurance of local participation in providing funds is required.

The extent of local participation for these three projects amounts to $1,579,000 annually from Maryland and West Virginia for about 50 years.

Congress has ordered the Corps of Engineers to prepare a development program for the Potomac basin, one of the last great basins in the country not developed. A report was prepared in 1946 but was not implemented. In 1956 Congress asked the Corps to review its 1946 report.

The target date for completion of the review is 1961, but the legislative committee said failure of Congress to appropriate sufficient funds indicates a delay until 1962 or 1963.

The Maryland legislators also attacked a 1959 congressional resolution limiting the scope of the survey to water supply, flood control and pollution control. It said this restriction should be lifted.

The recommended changes in the Interstate Commission, consisting of Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and the District of Columbia, would broaden its scope of activities from pollution abatement only to include water resources and associated land resources.

City Begins Work To Check Petition Names

The checking of names on petitions requesting a referendum on a charter amendment resolution which would remove a three-year residency requirement for applicants for city police and firemen has been started, according to City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery.

The petitions carry 2,752 names, Ullery said, adding that it is still too early to determine if there are enough qualified signers to force the referendum.

According to current registration figures, 2,320 names of voters must be signers for the petition to become effective.

In line with the petition work, Ullery pointed out that the city is acceping applications for future openings on the police force. Ullery said there were only five applicants for the last police examination, adding that the small number of applicants was one of the major reasons why the Mayor and Council sought to delete the residency requirement from the regulations.

It was the feeling that more applicants could be secured if the requirement were eliminated. Fewer examinations would have to be held since more names would be carried on the eligibility lists.

Men between the ages of 21 and 35 years will be accepted as applicants, the city clerk said. The present residency requirements will be effective for the next police examination, he added.

Administration spokesmen said police and fireman positions should be attractive to many young men of the city. The positions have a rather permanent status, a good pension program is available for each position, the men are offered medical and hospital services and they are eligible for vacations after having completed probationary periods.

It was also pointed out that men in both departments were recently given a salary increase amounting to approximately $40 a month.

Bedford County Demos Sweep All Jobs But One

BEDFORD — For the first time in nearly 100 years, Democrats swept all of the "court house" jobs except one in the county election Tuesday.

The biggest upset was Democrat Edwin E. Daugherty, Fishertown, a Bedford newspaper employe, defeating Republican Howard J. Koontz, Republican prothonotary and clerk of courts for the past 24 years.

In the lone Republican victory, incumbent Sheriff J. Wayne Manspeaker just squeaked through by 151 votes over his Democratic opponent, S. Percy Foor. The tally was 7,393 to 7,242.

The two Democratic commissioners elected were Elmer C. Claycomb of Bedford Township and Emmens E. Buchanan of Buffalo Mills, near Hyndman.

Another Buffalo Mills area Democrat also captured a county office. Clifford C. Adams was elected county treasurer over Jack S. Brallier.

Two of the three county auditors are also Democratic. — Incumbent Mildred Snyder of Bedford and W. Scott Rinedollar of Everett. The Republican member is E. Bell Hershberger of Bedford.

E. W. Van Horn was unopposed for district attorney.

The unofficial tally for all polling places is as follows:

County Commissioner — Claycomb, 7736; Buchanan, 6,987; Foy, 6,879; and Incumbent Elmer W. Foor Sr., Republican, 6,626.

Prothonotary and clerks of courts, Daugherty, 7,467; Koontz, 7,022; County Treasurer, Adams, 7,386; Brallier, 7,134;

Faster Survey Of Potomac Sought By State Group

BALTIMORE (AP)—A legislative committee yesterday urged Maryland's Congressmen to secure a federal appropriation that will enable the Army Corps of Engineers to complete its survey of the Potomac River basin at the earliest possible date and without any limitations.

The Legislative Council's Committee on the Potomac River Basin also recommended that the council approve proposed changes in the compact governing an interstate commission on the basin.

The revised compact would expand the scope of the Interstate Commission into the field of water resources and would remove the ceiling on financial contributions from member states.

The committee's third recommendation was that it be reappointed in 1960 to continue its studies of the river for the fifth year.

The committee report, presented to the council also took note of other problems for which it made no specific recommendation. One of these "unresolved problems" concerned the North Branch of the Potomac.

The committee noted that the area above Cumberland and Ridgeley, W. Va. was reviewed in an interim report to the larger study because of "the urgent need for improvements in the North Branch."

The recommendations called for three new dams—one on the Potomac above Bloomington, another on Stony River, and a second one on the Savage River. The committee said the Corps of Engineers' planning has now reached the stage where assurance of local participation in providing funds is required.

The extent of local participation for these three projects amounts to $1,579,000 annually from Maryland and West Virginia for about 50 years.

Congress has ordered the Corps of Engineers to prepare a development program for the Potomac basin, one of the last great basins in the country not developed. A report was prepared in 1946 but was not implemented. In 1956 Congress asked the Corps to review its 1946 report.

The target date for completion of the review is 1961, but the legislative committee said failure of Congress to appropriate sufficient funds indicates a delay until 1962 or 1963.

The Maryland legislators also attacked a 1959 congressional resolution limiting the scope of the survey to water supply, flood control and pollution control. It said this restriction should be lifted.

The recommended changes in the Interstate Commission, consisting of Maryland, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia and the District of Columbia, would broaden its scope of activities from pollution abatement only to include water resources and associated land resources.

City Begins Work To Check Petition Names

The checking of names on petitions requesting a referendum on a charter amendment resolution which would remove a three-year residency requirement for applicants for city police and firemen has been started, according to City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery.

The petitions carry 2,752 names, Ullery said, adding that it is still too early to determine if there are enough qualified signers to force the referendum.

According to current registration figures, 2,320 names of voters must be signers for the petition to become effective.

In line with the petition work, Ullery pointed out that the city is acceping applications for future openings on the police force. Ullery said there were only five applicants for the last police examination, adding that the small number of applicants was one of the major reasons why the Mayor and Council sought to delete the residency requirement from the regulations.

It was the feeling that more applicants could be secured if the requirement were eliminated. Fewer examinations would have to be held since more names would be carried on the eligibility lists.

Men between the ages of 21 and 35 years will be accepted as applicants, the city clerk said. The present residency requirements will be effective for the next police examination, he added.

Administration spokesmen said police and fireman positions should be attractive to many young men of the city. The positions have a rather permanent status, a good pension program is available for each position, the men are offered medical and hospital services and they are eligible for vacations after having completed probationary periods.

It was also pointed out that men in both departments were recently given a salary increase amounting to approximately $40 a month.

Bedford County Demos Sweep All Jobs But One

BEDFORD — For the first time in nearly 100 years, Democrats swept all of the "court house" jobs except one in the county election Tuesday.

The biggest upset was Democrat Edwin E. Daugherty, Fishertown, a Bedford newspaper employe, defeating Republican Howard J. Koontz, Republican prothonotary and clerk of courts for the past 24 years.

In the lone Republican victory, incumbent Sheriff J. Wayne Manspeaker just squeaked through by 151 votes over his Democratic opponent, S. Percy Foor. The tally was 7,393 to 7,242.

The two Democratic commissioners elected were Elmer C. Claycomb of Bedford Township and Emmens E. Buchanan of Buffalo Mills, near Hyndman.

Another Buffalo Mills area Democrat also captured a county office. Clifford C. Adams was elected county treasurer over Jack S. Brallier.

Two of the three county auditors are also Democratic. — Incumbent Mildred Snyder of Bedford and W. Scott Rinedollar of Everett. The Republican member is E. Bell Hershberger of Bedford.

E. W. Van Horn was unopposed for district attorney.

The unofficial tally for all polling places is as follows:

County Commissioner — Claycomb, 7736; Buchanan, 6,987; Foy, 6,879; and Incumbent Elmer W. Foor Sr., Republican, 6,626.

Prothonotary and clerks of courts, Daugherty, 7,467; Koontz, 7,022; County Treasurer, Adams, 7,386; Brallier, 7,134;

Wheeling Area Hard Hit By Steel Strike

WHEELING, W. Va. (UPI) — The steel strike has brought drastic slashes in operations and employment in the Wheeling area since it began last July.

A survey this week of area industry disclosed that only an electrical products plant and some foundries were the only steel-using plants which have not been cut back sharply.

The Wheeling plant of Sylvania Inc. has been operating with its full complement of 300 employes. The cost of buying foreign and other steel, however, was described as "immense" by a company spokesman.

Some 160 workmen have been laid off and the work week cut to four days at the big Olin - Mathieson-Ormet aluminum plant at nearby Hannibal, Ohio.

Foundries still have some pig iron on hand and have not been affected to a large degree by the nationwide walkout.

The lack of steel also has drastically curtailed operations at Wheeling Machine Coupling Co.; Metropolitan Stamping Co., Shaddyside, Ohio; Pipe Coupling Co., Martins Ferry, Ohio; Triangle Conduit & Cable Co., near Moundsville, and the H. H. Phillips Stamping Co., Bellaire, Ohio.

Mrs. J. T. Defibaugh, 515 City View Terrace, is a surgical patient in Sacred Heart Hospital.

One of the workmen was trapped behind the wall of flame and could not be rescued until the fire was extinguished.

Admitted to the hospital were, Keith Ward, 25, Charleston, Cecil E. Webb, 48, Charleston, Truman Saul, 48, Alkol, Otis Hodge, 48, West Hamlin and Page McCartney 50, Alum Creek. Treated and released were Asa Wolfinbarger, 42, Sissonville and Elmo Meadows 35, Alkol.

West Virginia Employment Trend Varies

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—There have been sharp drops in employment in two large metropolitan areas in West Virginia and a continued upward trend in a third in recent months.

The State Department of Employment Security said Wednesday employment in the six county Wheeling - Steubenville, Ohio, area had dropped 11,450 from mid - July to mid-September.

The agency said employment in that area now was estimated at 117,000 and the most recent decline produced an over-the-year loss of 8,050 jobs.

A monthly report of the department attributed the loss to the steel strike and other labor-management disputes.

Secondary effects of the steel walkout were blamed for a drop of 5,350 jobs in the past two months in the Huntington - Ashland, Ky.-Ironton, Ohio metropolitan area.

The report said the number of area job-holders was down to 76,100 at mid-September, 3,450 under the level at mid-September, 1958.

The Charleston metropolitan area extended its upward employment trend to six consecutive months in reaching 104,150 at mid-September, the department said.

The latest employment determination indicated an improvement of 950 in the preceding 60 days, an increase of 2,750 over the mid-September figure last year.

Underwood Hears Isner's Plea In Adoption Case

By CARLO J. SALZANO
United Press International

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—A Tucker County couple fighting to retain custody of a three-year-old girl left their case Wednesday "in the hands of the governor and God."

Mrs. Edith Isner of Parsons made the statement after she and her husband, Forest, spent one hour and 45 minutes with Gov. Cecil H. Underwood. Also attending the meeting were the Isners' pastor, the Rev. Rankin Roach, and a representative of the State Department of Public Assistance, including Director Thomas R. Egbert.

The couple has had custody of the child, Rosemary, since she was only one week old. They obtained custody from the DPA under a foster home contract.

The Isners were awarded permanent custody by the Tucker County Circuit Court in June, 1958, but the State Supreme Court reversed this decision Oct 6 and ordered the Isners to return Rosemary to the DPA for adoption.

Obviously exhausted and upset, she said she felt the DPA did not intend to back down from its decision to regain custody of the child.

"I can't say anything; I'm just afraid to," Mrs. Isner commented. "We left it in the hands of the governor and God."

The Baptist minister said the couple "has every right to feel optimistic over the fact that the governor did not say no.

"When a man doesn't say no, faith gives you hope," Roach said.

Mrs. Isner said Underwood appeared friendly and seemed to weigh our pleas against the position taken by the DPA.

"I'm sure that now it's strictly up to the governor," she said.

Underwood confirmed this later when he said "the decision must be made by me," as to whether the DPA's right to reclaim Rosemary and place her for adoption might be waived.

The governor said he would make the decision after he reviews again all the facts and documents of the DPA.

"No amount of pressure — political or social — will alter my final decision," Underwood added. "I appreciate the love Mr. and Mrs. Isner have for the child and will make a decision I feel is in the best interest of the child."

Algonquin Actors Look Forward To Second Play

The Algonquin Players are beginning to make arrangements for the presentation of "The Solid Gold Cadillac," a comedy, as their second production of the season.

Skits for "The Solid Gold Cadillac" are now available for borrowing from the Cumberland Free Public Library by those interested in trying out for parts in the forthcoming play. Tryouts will be conducted later this month.

This comedy about the elderly woman stockholder who disrupted the operations of one of America's large corporations was written by Howard Teichmann and George S. Kaufman.

At the theatrical group's last meeting, reports on "Harvey," which was presented in Carroll Hall October 24, 25 and 26, were presented. Chad Riley, the director, expressed satisfaction and called it a "successful" performance. Al Warhaft, treasurer, submitted a financial statement on the production. Two new members, Miss Nancy Belt and William Johnson, were welcomed.

The meeting, open to interested parents of boys between the ages of eight and 10½, will begin at 7:30 p. m. A scouting representative from the Boy Scout office in Cumberland will attend the meeting and discuss cub scouting with the parents who may bring their boys.

A three-man committee has been set up by the Lions Club to formulate plans for the Pack. Members are Jack Cornett, chief of police; Melvin Heiskell, school principal, and Keith Skidmore, town councilman.

Youths Face Charges In Local Theft

Leighty And White Held In County Jail

Two local 16-year-old youths have been charged with breaking and entering and grand larceny in the theft of several guns and ammunition from Wilson Hardware Company here.

Being held in the County Jail are John N. Leighty, RFD 4, Christie Road, and Franklin C. White, RFD 1, Valley Road.

The state's attorney's offices said yesterday that Juvenile Court authorities have waived jurisdiction in the case and the two youths will be given a hearing in Allegany County Circuit Court.

The two boys indicated they wanted an immediate trial and criminal information in the case will be filed either today or tomorrow, the state's attorney's office said.

State Police arrested the two youths Sunday in Oakland.

They were questioned here Tuesday and admitted several other thefts. Six pistols and a quantity of ammunition were taken from Wilson Hardware.

Lt. James E. Van and Detective Thomas J. See yesterday recovered several articles the lads admitted taking after breaking into several cottages on the Christie Road.

The loot included a $50 transistor radio, a typewriter case and a piece of luggage.

The articles were recovered after the lads led the city detectives to several placs in nearby woods where they had cached the stolen goods.

Walsh Group's

committee appointed by Gov. Tawes and was presented to the council Wednesday by William C. Walsh of Cumberland, former judge and former state attorney general who was chairman of the governor's committee.

Walsh reminded the predominantly Democratic legislators that it was a plank in their 1958 party platform and had also been a plank in Republican platforms befor last year.

He said that although not perfect it was the best plan his group was able to devise to assure more representation for the rapidly growing suburban counties whose maximum of six seats in the house was "grossly inequitable." It carried provisions for five other counties to also add seats by 1970 or 1980 if their population followed present trends.

After in was defeated, on the motion of Del. W. Dale Hess (D-Harford), Del. Jerome Robinson (D-Balto City) offered a substitute motion urging the calling of a constitutional convention which could reapportion seats. This was defeated 10-7.

Four Would Gain

Baltimore County's house membership would have been increased from 6 to 9 delegates, Prince Georges and Montgomery's from 6 to 8 each, and Anne Arundel from 6 to 7. Walsh pointed out that the four now account for 1,300,000 of the State's population.

Hess, in moving to kill the proposal, said the House was already so crowded it couldn't properly accommodate the Senate for a joint session. "Where would we put any more members?" he asked.

He said he also felt one delegate could represent 50,000 people in a compact area as well as he could 1,500 in a rural county. "You've got a job of representing people in either case," he said. "Six delegates from Baltimore County can represent that county as well as 10."

Dels. Gordon Boone (D-Balto County) and Ridgely Melvin (D-Anne Arundel) and Sen. Edward S. Northrop (D-Montgomery) were principal backers of the measure. Voting with them were House Speaker Perry O. Wilkinson (D-Prince Georges) and Del. Lester Reed (R-Allegany), who said he was doing so "out of my great respect for Judge Walsh."

Among those joining Hess against it were Dels. Samuel Barrick and Charles Smelser, both Frederick County Democrats.

Bonus Proposal

The veterans bonus proposal squeaked through 9-6, but its provisions for one per cent increases in the sales and income taxes, backed by whatever increases might be needed in the property tax, leaves its passage highly questionable.

It came from the council's Budget and Finance Committee and, when drafted in bill form, will go to the assembly with mixed blessings. If approved there, it would put the question to voters in the 1960 election.

Shelving of the scholarship proposal for another year came after Del. Blair Lee (D-Montgomery) had outlined the summer-long work of his committee to streamline what he called a present "hodge podge" system. Its chief features would have placed administration of scholarships under a new state board, would have rdeuced grants for pupils at private colleges to tuition only, and would have held those at state schools to tuition plus fees.

Lee said these economies would permit adding 452 scholarships at no extra cost to the state and bringing the total to 1,979.

One unpopular feature of the play, however, would have cut out the "swapping" of appointment privileges which state senators now exercise. The vote to continue the committee's work for another year was 10-7.

The council also received reports, but took no final action, on these subjects:

Teaching of driver education in the public schools to be financed by boosting the cost of instruction licenses from $1 to $5.

Expanding the Potomac River Basin compact with neighboring states to include water resources as well as pollution abatement in its activities and lifting the $30,000 ceiling on financial contributions from member states.

Restricting state spending of surplus monies to five million dollars and providing that the remainder of the surplus each year go into a reserve fund and for capital improvements now financed by bond issues.

Expanding the Court of Appeals from 5 to 7 judges.

The council decided to hold a special meeting Nov. 24 to hear proposals for pay increases for school teachers and State employes.

Naval Reserve Application Deadline Near

High school seniors and graduates have until November 14 to apply for the Navy's Reserve Officer Training Corps.

Chief Lawrence C. Elliott, petty officer in charge of the local Navy recruiting station, said applicants will take the nationwide competitive examination on December 12 as the first step toward an appointment as midshipman.

Designed to supplement the officer output of the Naval Academy, the NROTC program makes it possible for a young man to earn a regular commission while studying at the civilian college of his choice which has an NROTC unit.

Chief Elliott said all tuition fees and books are furnished by the Navy and the student receives an annual retainer of $600 for four years. During the summers the student goes on training cruises to many parts of the world.

High school seniors and graduates who have reached their 17th birthday and have not reached 21 on July 1960 may apply for the NROTC aptitude test. Those who make a qualifying score will be given a rigid physical exam early next year.

Application forms are available at high schools, colleges, local Navy recruiting station, or from the Chief of Naval Personnel, Department of the Navy, Washington, D. C. Additional information may be obtained at the recruiting station in the Post Office here.

Double	Pass	Pass	5 ♣

Opening lead: Ace of ♥.

Among the more recent developments in contract bridge, perhaps one of the most colorful is the "unusual no trump convention." It provides that where a player makes a bid of any number of no trumps which could not possibly mean what it says, then the no trump bid is to be construed as a take-out double and partner is expected to respond in his best minor suit. The common sense of the situation is this: If a player makes a take-out double of one major suit, it is reasonable to suppose that he would like to hear his partner respond in the other major. But where the prospective doubler is not prepared for the other major, he obtains the effect of doubling for a minor suit response by using an unnatural overcall in no trump.

The use of this convention led to some strange ramifications in today's hand. West opened with one heart and East raised directly to game in hearts. The situation was made to order for South to use the "unusual no trump" requesting partner's best minor suit. West doubled and when North took no action, South proceeded to five clubs, West decided to double again.

Perhaps North, by this time, should have bid five diamonds. It is to be recalled that South offered his partner a choice of clubs and diamonds and North's preference for diamonds appears to be clear.

West opened the ace of hearts. The appearance of the dummy discouraged a continuation and West alertly shifted to the ace and another diamond. He properly concluded that South's unnatural no trump bid was based on at least five of each of the minors.

Admittedly, North and South were the victims of a bad break and brilliant defense, but a five diamond contract would have been invincible.

Opening lead: Ace of ♥.

Among the more recent developments in contract bridge, perhaps one of the most colorful is the "unusual no trump convention." It provides that where a player makes a bid of any number of no trumps which could not possibly mean what it says, then the no trump bid is to be construed as a take-out double and partner is expected to respond in his best minor suit. The common sense of the situation is this: If a player makes a take-out double of one major suit, it is reasonable to suppose that he would like to hear his partner respond in the other major. But where the prospective doubler is not prepared for the other major, he obtains the effect of doubling for a minor suit response by using an unnatural overcall in no trump.

The use of this convention led to some strange ramifications in today's hand. West opened with one heart and East raised directly to game in hearts. The situation was made to order for South to use the "unusual no trump" requesting partner's best minor suit. West doubled and when North took no action, South proceeded to five clubs, West decided to double again.

Perhaps North, by this time, should have bid five diamonds. It is to be recalled that South offered his partner a choice of clubs and diamonds and North's preference for diamonds appears to be clear.

West opened the ace of hearts. The appearance of the dummy discouraged a continuation and West alertly shifted to the ace and another diamond. He properly concluded that South's unnatural no trump bid was based on at least five of each of the minors.

Admittedly, North and South were the victims of a bad break and brilliant defense, but a five diamond contract would have been invincible.

A New Battle For Midway

On Midway Island, a western member of the Hawaiian Island chain, the natural elements and man's creations have finally headlocked in fight to the finish. At this moment, it appears nature has been overruled by Washington. But the fight is by no means finished, and human sympathy may, cannibalistically, turn against homo sapiens and go to the birds.

It all began when fliers at the strategic Navy base began running into albatrosses — literally. Flying machines just aren't made the way they used to be, or perhaps sound barrier speeds have something to do with it. Anyway, the metallic birds are finding it harder to survive combat with their feathered cousins.

Jet aircraft in particular, with their ravenous turbine caverns swooshing in everything within swooshing distance, have bitten off more than they can chew with birds the size of albatross. Little creatures they devour without a trace, but the albatross turns off their gas burners. Not to mention, of course, the unpleasantness of having a member of the largest sea bird clan come calling through the windshield at a speed of hundreds of miles an hour.

Midway found itself entrapped by the enemy and appealed to Washington for advice. The order went out to annihilate the enemy. But the words had hardly been decoded when the albatross forces made a considerable show of strength by rallying the National Audubon Society, the Linnaean Society, the International Committee for Bird Preservation and the American Committee for International Wild Life Protection to the cause.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

Facing The Truth

Admiral Hyman Rickover has assumed the role of leadership in the battle for the revision of educational methods in this country and his impact is already being felt. It may be surprising that this thin, soft voiced naval officer, who specializes in engineering and builds submarines, should devote himself so assiduously to education.

It is, however, obvious that a man who gives himself to the service of his country and who achieves such distinction that he could make a fortune for himself in private industry, would seek for more than a mere perpetuation of the status quo because it is the fine of least resistance. Admiral Rickover, speaking at the 90th anniversary of Roosevelt Hospital in New York City, said:

". . . The initial advantage possessed by nations who invent science and technology is not retained unless these nations stay ahead of the rest in technological efficiency. Their head start is easily lost, chiefly, because it breeds in people a sense of superiority which leads to complacency and slackening of effort. England, for example, lost her head start as the first country to introduce industrialization because she proved less efficient in advancing and utilizing science than her Continental competitors. These were willing to put in more effort to be technologically efficient and they understood better what this effort must be."

This is so important at this moment in our history. We have grown proud. We have assumed that we possess a superiority over other peoples. We believed that for some reason or other, we, as a people, were capable of a quality called "know-how" which others did not have.

But we have suddenly discovered that Soviet Russia has achieved an astonishingly progressive position in the sciences and in engineering. We have witnessed the spectacle of West Germany forging ahead to a brilliant industrial leadership in Western Europe. Red China boasts, perhaps untruthfully, that it will by-pass Great Britain, the original site of the Industrial Revolution.

Certainly in the 1920's and even 1930's Japan pushed ahead so rapidly in textiles, that Nippon challenged the world and this may well have been one cause for World War II. This experience cannot be overlooked in a study of this subject.

The issue that Admiral Rickover raised is not one of manufacturing but of education. It is possible for a nation to provide statistics which establish that it has a high literacy rate. But have the people learned to think, to think independently and originally? Intelligence is not cheaply bought nor does a Phi Beta Kappa key prove intelligence although it may prove diligence.

Admiral Rickover explains this in another way, referring to pre-World War I Germany:

"The principal reason why Germany rapidly closed the gap in industrial productivity between herself and England was Germany's better understanding that a country's industrial — and hence political—position in the world depends on ability to increase and utilize scientific knowledge. She drew the correct inference that education must therefore be made widely available; that private initiative is insufficient and schools and universities must be, at least in part, supported out of taxes. She further recognized the key role of the professions. By offering them generous rewards, she insured that men of first-rate ability were drawn into the professions."

England, at this same period, took a different position, according to Admiral Rickover:

". . . Education in England was a private or eleemosynary enterprise; a good education could be had only in expensive and socially exclusive private boarding schools and colleges. The poor received almost no education; the middle class an inferior one . . ."

Germany forged ahead, as Japan forged ahead, following German methods, as Soviet Russia is forging ahead now, for in Soviet Russia not only is education, up to the highest degree, free but the students are paid a salary for studying.

It used to be said that knowledge is power. It is not only knowledge that is power, but the capacity to relate knowledge to ideas and to imagination that matters. For what is most necessary in this day is intelligence.

Admiral Rickover applied intelligence to designing and building the atomic submarine; he is now applying that same intelligence to reforming our educational system so that it can be of greater service not only to the individual student but to the nation and mankind.

Investigators Will Find More Scandal In Commercials Than Shows

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — If Congressional probers ever look beyond the rigged television shows into the commercials that pay for them, it will cause an upheaval on Madison Avenue.

There among the chrome steel skyscrapers of New York City's heartland, along a one-mile stretch known informally as Advertising Alley or Ulcer Gulch, are found the flannel-suited men who control what the public sees on television.

Most of the power is held not by the TV networks which broadcast the shows but by the advertising agencies which produce the commercials. For the advertising dollar is almighty king of commercial television.

In the great struggle to win milady's approval of one deodorant or lipstick over another, the agencies resort to hyperbole and deception. They use such trickery as soaping the beer glass to improve the foam or treating the margarine sample with glycerine to make it appear fresher than brand X.

Madison Avenue Literature

Their writers and composers draw fancy salaries to create such immortal verses as: "Winstons taste good like a cigarette should." They drum home the message that thinking men smoke Viceroys, although most thinking men familiar with the lung-cancer reports wouldn't smoke at all.

Behind all the claims and slogans, most products are frustratingly similar to their competitors. The chief difference often lies in the advertising approach. This has led to misleading advertising which is a worse hoax upon the public than the rigged shows.

For example, the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company joined in sponsoring the scandal-scuttled $64,000 Challenge" to extol the merits of Kent Cigarettes' new "micronite" filter. This antiseptic gadget was hailed by the announcer as "so safe, so pure, it's used to filter the air in leading hospitals." Yet at the same time, the company was pooh-poohing medical claims in its Old Gold commercials which offered "a treat, not a treatment."

Cough Up $40,000

Earlier this year, Lorillard was fined $40,000 for failing to abide by a 1950 court decree cracking down on "deceptive" Old Gold advertising. The original Federal Trade Commission complaint charged the company with "unfair methods of competition" in advertising Old Golds.

Basis of the complaint was Lorillard's repeated claim that Old Golds contained less tars and nicotine, hence were less irritating to the throat than other leading brands. The company backed up its claim with a Reader's Digest article which indeed showed that the tar-nicotine content of Old Golds was lower than other brands.

The advertising didn't mention, however, that the nicotine difference was only 1/177,187th of an ounce and that the Reader's Digest article concluded: "The laboratory's general conclusion will be sad news for the advertising copywriters but good news to the smoker who need no longer worry as to which cigarette can most effectively nail down his coffin. For one nail is just about as good as another . . . No single brand is so superior to its competitors as to justify its selection on the ground that it is less harmful."

Despite the court decree ordering Lorillard to lay off the hokum, the company continued to make fictitious claims of Old Gold superiority. Result: Lorillard and its lawyers were haled before the Court of Appeals to show cause why the company shouldn't be cited for contempt.

"Flagrant Contempt"

The FTC complained to the court that Lorillard had "brushed aside, ignored and displayed utter indifference to, and defiance of, the (1950) direction of the court." Such action, the FTC charged, constituted "open, wilful, premeditated, deliberate, and flagrant contempt of the decree of this court."

The company was ordered to shell out a $40,000 fine. But it promptly hired Edward Howrey, a former FTC chairman, to try to persuade the FTC to tone down its hostility toward Old Gold advertising.

Note—The great B. B. D. & O. advertising agency, which toots the horn for clients of such diversity as Campbell's Soup and the Republican party, once found itself advertising filter cigarettes and promoting a Reader's Digest expose of filter cigarettes at the same time. Having a sense of ethics, the agency promptly dropped the small Reader's Digest account but remained true to the big-spending American Tobacco Company.

Red Tape Eater

With an avenging pencil, this reporter set out last week to slay another dragon said to be preying on the taxpayers. The culprit was a chief inspector for the Border Patrol, William M. Davis, who stood accused of misappropriating government property.

It turned out Davis had requisitioned surplus material from Maywood Air Force Base, Calif., without going through the proper channels. His "ulterior" purpose: To reduce the cost of improvements on the post he commanded at Chula Vista, Calif., near the Mexican border.

He even indulged in some horse-trading with government property when he could find a deal that would save the taxpayers money. His men put in hundreds of hours overtime without pay fixing up the premises. Their volunteer work saved the government several thousand dollars. They would turn out willingly with tools and brushes because of their loyalty and affection for Davis.

Yet the fact remains that Davis helped himself to surplus property and cut red tape without always obtaining official permission. For offending his superiors' sensibilities, he was summarily investigated, stripped of his authority to draw surplus material, and shipped off to Richmond, Va.

The dragon was chased off to other pastures not for feeding upon tax dollars but for chewing up red tape.

Secret Police Chief Heads Chinese Red Army

By Joseph Alsop

HONG KONG

In Communist China, too many storm warnings have been given in recent months. The warnings suggest that the Chinese people are entering a period of national agony crudely comparable to the agony endured by the Russian people during the early five-year plans.

Among these storm warnings, the darkest and most meaningful is certainly the recent, abrupt change in the army high command. Amid a drumfire of denunciations of "right oppositionists," Minister of Defense and hero of the Korean war, Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, was suddenly cashiered and replaced by his ailing old-time rival, Gen. Lin Piao. Much more significantly, the Chief of Staff, Gen. Huang Ko-Cheng, was also cashiered and replaced by none other than the chief of the secret police, Gen. Lo Jui-Ching.

Among those who know far more about China than this reporter there is a certain tendency to explain this extraordinary event in relatively ordinary terms. Superficially, there are some grounds for doing so.

For over a year, Chinese Communist publications meant to be read by the inner group have been revealing a sharp, three-point argument about the "Peoples' Liberation Army." Persons unnamed have been sharply lectured because they hankered for a modern, Soviet-style army, instead of an army still organized on the "immortal" principles laid down by Mao Tse-tung for the guerilla war.

The same unnamed persons have been lectured, because of their resistance to domination of the army by the sacred Communist party's political commissars. And the lectures have also insisted on the rightness of the widespread use of army units as labor troops and of the requirement, established about a year ago, that all army officers annually serve one month in the ranks.

Evidently this dispute about army policy has been serious. It could quitely easily explain the simple dismissals of Gen. Peng and Gen. Huang. One can imagine the veteran Peng Teh-Huai presuming on an association with Mao Tse-Tung reaching back to the time before the famous "long march." One can picture him affronting Mao by his obstinate arguments for truly professional and modern armed forces.

Then too, Gen. Lin Piao's return to active politics after long illness, was announced by his appointment to the inner group of the Chinese Politburo about a year ago. One can equally well imagine Gen. Lin inflaming Mao against his rival, Gen. Peng.

Yet the dispute about army policy cannot reasonably be used to explain the strangest and most dramatic feature of the changes in the high command. This was the choice of the secret police boss, Gen. Lo, as the new army Chief of Staff. This is almost on a par with Stalin's naming Marshal Beria to run the Red Army when he exiled Gen. Zhukov. And even Stalin dared not do this, no doubt because of the bitter enmity that always exists, in all such societies, between the professional army and the police apparatus.

Why then choose Lo instead of a pliable army careerist? There is also evidence to answer this question. For example, Chinese army officers used to be allowed to have their families with them. But all the "dependents" (our own ugly word) were abruptly sent back to their villages at almost the exact moment when all the villages of China were entering the remorseless meat-grinder of the rural communes.

The simultaneous loss of privilege and exposure to the general misery must have been a shock. The effect of this and comparable measures on the army was in turn revealed in an astonishing passage in Gen. Lin Piao's speech on the tenth anniversary of the Chinese revolution.

"Owing to the fact that the overwhelming majority of our officers and combatants are farmers," said Lin darkly, "it is quite natural that some comrades. . . consider their problems based on interests of a transient and local nature. . . and petty bourgeois ideology."

This is a wonderfully unashamed admission that being a peasant gives rise to dangerous thoughts about the Chinese peasants' and workers' Soviet Socialist Republic. It is one of several pointers indicating that the party leadership changed the high command because they feared that the communes program was causing actual disaffection in the army, the main prop of the regime. Perhaps they also noticed that whereas the Hungarian army ended by fighting side by side with the Hungarian people, the secret police, the AVO, were admirably loyal to their employers.

From such pointers, one may deduce the nature of Gen. Lo Jui-Ching's task. But one wonders what will happen to the Chinese people when the ex-secret police chief has reformed the Chinese army to his liking.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

PATH TO SUMMIT—President Eisenhower wants to limit discussion at the forthcoming summit meeting to the problems of Berlin and disarmament.

He is determined to keep the agenda down to these two matters in order to keep the meeting short and, more important, to find out once and for all whether the Soviet leaders really want to ease world tension or just talk about it.

Oddly enough, government experts believe that the President will have more trouble in working up an agenda with the Allies than he will have from the Russians. West Germany's leaders are deeply concerned about the outcome of any talks on the future status of Berlin.

France, on the other hand, is reluctant to discuss disarmament at this stage of her own atomic weapons program. The French have been extremely sensitive to their long lag in atomic weapons and fear that the U. S., Britain and Russia will try to freeze atomic weapons at their present status.

France's leaders claim they cannot tolerate such an agreement, as it would relegate their country to the status of a second-rate power for the foreseeable future.

England is pressing so hard for a summit meeting that she is likely to side with whatever view seems predominant on matters of an agenda. If the Allies are hopelessly split, some informed persons in the State department believe she may even side with the Russians on the question.

President Eisenhower is fully aware of the cross-currents that beset the path to the summit. He therefore is advocating a western summit meeting first to thrash out differences and face the Russians as a united force.

Erratic Market

By Leslie Gould

NEW YORK — In the face of the continued stalemate in the steel strike and a developing slow down in other lines due to steel shortages, the stock market moved irregularly higher in October.

It was an erratic market, with the electronic glamor stocks and the shares of the two small motor car makers scoring big gains. The small motors accounted for the bulk of the trading in several of the sessions, while the shares of their big brothers made no progress.

In this department's tabulation of 36 leading stock groups, 25 were higher on the month and 11 lower.

The weak spots were the aluminums, aircraft manufacturing, can, rails, sugars and motor accessories.

The strong groups were radio-tv manufacturing, motors, mining, radio broadcasting, automation, cements, machine tools, communications, electrical equipments and rubbers.

The steel news dominated, but even so the steel shares as a group held their own. This performance was interesting in face of the sharp drop in third quarter earnings and the likelihood of a not too good fourth quarter even if the strike is settled or a Taft-Hartley resumption takes place. Hopes of extra dividends for this group have gone.

In the glamor stocks, Texas Instruments gained 36½, Zenith 18¼, Litton 20⅝, General Tire 11½, Thiokol 13 and Ampex 29¼.

Part of these speculations was due to the shift in the missile program, with indications of increased spending.

Speculators in the small motors had a field day. American Motors gained 22⅜, and at its high of 82½ was up 24 ⅞. Its low was 75½ this year. Studebaker regular common picked up 6⅝ and the when-issued 4⅛. Shorts are trapped in all these issues, and the market in the two Studebaker shares couldn't be more confusing.

The market ignored the fact that regardless of when the steel strike is settled and how this is accomplished, business will be slowed down. General Motors in reporting excellent earnings stated it was running out of steel and is shutting down many of its operations.

It will take time to get the mills back in production—probably four to five weeks before full production can be resumed. If it is a Taft-Hartley resumption, conditions will be chaotic, for customers will scramble to buy in fear of a resumption of the walk out at the end of the 80-day cooling off period.

Tax selling and tax switching is becoming an increasing factor in the market. The oils, which have been depressed because of the world wide overproduction, have been subject to this kind of selling.

Third quarter earnings reports have been better than expected. A number of companies showed record profits. A number of companies have voted stock splits. Allied Chemical and Westinghouse voted two for one splits.

Inhalers, Pink Elephants, And Vitamins

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The original Benzedrine inhalers contained 250 mg. of amphetamine. Prison inmates and drug addicts found they could bring on a major jag by opening the inhaler and chewing the paper filters. Amphetamine intoxication is understandable with this quantity, considering that the medical dose varies from 5 to 30 mg.

When a better nasal decongestant became available, the manufacturers of the inhalers decided to use it rather than Benzedrine. The habit of chewing the contents stopped abruptly. In the last 10 years, these inhalers have been used without stigma.

But recently a new inhaler containing the same old amphetamine was introduced by a different maker. After a rash of robberies, holdups, and muggings in Kansas City, Mo., police found that groups of teenagers were the new users. Water was put in the inhalers and sloshed about until the contents were absorbed. Then the solution was injected into an arm with a needle. The FDA stepped in and now the sale of amphetamine inhalers without a prescription is forbidden.

The pink elephants an alcoholic sees on the wall are really gray, according to Dr. Rollo N. Harger. The Indiana professor of biochemistry and toxicology asserts that the effects of alcohol on vision are similar to those that occur while driving with sun glasses at twilight. The nervous system is too clouded to differentiate tones and the world is not as rosy to the drinker as it appears.

Dr. Casimir Funk is regarded as the father of vitamin therapy. In 1911 he isolated a substance from rice polishings that cured beri-beri. He called the product "vitamine" because it is essential to life. Dr. Funk was 75 this year and continues in active research.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT

WANTS PROGNOSIS

C. K. writes: My mother died of cancer at 51 and my aunt of the same malady at 57. My father died of a heart attack at 58. But both my grandparents are alive and I also have some long lived great-aunts. What do you think is in the cards for me, longevitywise?

REPLY

A long life, if you have a thorough examination every year and follow the rules of health. In this way, cancer and heart trouble can be detected in time to treat them successfully.

COLICKY BABY

Mrs. T. writes: My 3 month old baby has colic and cries all during an attack. What can be done to ease these spasms?

REPLY

Most physicians attempt to find the cause by altering the diet; milk, for example, is a common offender. In addition, they prescribe drugs to ease spasm. If these measures fail to give relief, X-rays are in order.

SISTERS' BLOOD

G. L. writes: Do full sisters have the same blood type?

REPLY

This would depend upon the blood group of the parents. If both father and mother are O, all the children would be O. But if one parent is O and the other A, then the children might be O or A. Similarly, if one parent is A and the other B, the children might be O, A, B, or AB.

BONE INFECTION

W. D. writes: Does osteomyelitis in the shin bone turn to cancer?

REPLY

No. The cause of cancer is not known but I doubt if infection of the bone plays a role. In the past, many persons suffered from osteomyelitis but it was not followed by bone cancer.

TOMORROW: Stress in migrainous children.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

Joe Welch, the brilliant Massachusetts lawyer who achieved national fame at the Army-McCarthy hearings, told Editor Curtiss Anderson, "Storms never frighten me. My intellect tells me I could get hurt or even killed, but is there any more graceful, natural way to die than by a sudden, beautiful stroke of lightning coming down from the skies? And I'd rather be hit by a tornado than some hellish machine built by human beings . . . I guess you'd say I simply have an attitude about weather!"

To prove his point, Mr. Welch has filled his Cape Cod cottage with a wide variety of weather instruments, with which he plots in detail the pattern of "good nor'easter" gales.

Overheard in a Hollywood studio (the mother of a precocious child star talking): "I put my foot down firmly on my daughter acting before she was five. I was determined that she should have a normal childhood!"

It is, however, obvious that a man who gives himself to the service of his country and who achieves such distinction that he could make a fortune for himself in private industry, would seek for more than a mere perpetuation of the status quo because it is the line of least resistance. Admiral Rickover, speaking at the 90th anniversary of Roosevelt Hospital in New York City, said:

". . . The initial advantage possessed by nations who invent science and technology is not retained unless these nations stay ahead of the rest in technological efficiency. Their head start is easily lost, chiefly, because it breeds in people a sense of superiority which leads to complacency and slackening of effort. England, for example, lost her head start as the first country to introduce industrialization because she proved less efficient in advancing and utilizing science than her Continental competitors. These were willing to put in more effort to be technologically efficient and they understood better what this effort must be."

This is so important at this moment in our history. We have grown proud. We have assumed that we possess a superiority over other peoples. We believed that for some reason or other, we, as a people, were capable of a quality called "know-how" which others did not have.

But we have suddenly discovered that Soviet Russia has achieved an astonishingly progressive position in the sciences and in engineering. We have witnessed the spectacle of West Germany forging ahead to a brilliant industrial leadership in Western Europe. Red China boasts, perhaps untruthfully, that it will by-pass Great Britain, the original site of the Industrial Revolution.

Certainly in the 1920's and even 1930's Japan pushed ahead so rapidly in textiles, that Nippon challenged the world and this may well have been one cause for World War II. This experience cannot be overlooked in a study of this subject.

The issue that Admiral Rickover raised is not one of manufacturing but of education. It is possible for a nation to provide statistics which establish that it has a high literacy rate. But have the people learned to think, to think independently and originally? Intelligence is not cheaply bought nor does a Phi Beta Kappa key prove intelligence although it may prove diligence.

Admiral Rickover explains this in another way, referring to pre-World War I Germany:

"The principal reason why Germany rapidly closed the gap in industrial productivity between herself and England was Germany's better understanding that a country's industrial — and hence political—position in the world depends on ability to increase and utilize scientific knowledge. She drew the correct inference that education must therefore be made widely available; that private initiative is insufficient and schools and universities must be, at least in part, supported out of taxes. She further recognized the key role of the professions. By offering them generous rewards, she insured that men of first-rate ability were drawn into the professions."

England, at this same period, took a different position, according to Admiral Rickover:

". . . Education in England was a private or eleemosynary enterprise; a good education could be had only in expensive and socially exclusive private boarding schools and colleges. The poor received almost no education; the middle class an inferior one . . ."

Germany forged ahead, as Japan forged ahead, following German methods, as Soviet Russia is forging ahead now, for in Soviet Russia not only is education, up to the highest degree, free but the students are paid a salary for studying.

It used to be said that knowledge is power. It is not only knowledge that is power, but the capacity to relate knowledge to ideas and to imagination that matters. For what is most necessary in this day is intelligence.

Admiral Rickover applied intelligence to designing and building the atomic submarine; he is now applying that same intelligence to reforming our educational system so that it can be of greater service not only to the individual student but to the nation and mankind.

The Dove Feels Like A Sitting Duck

Investigators Will Find More Scandal In Commercials Than Shows

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON — If Congressional probers ever look beyond the rigged television shows into the commercials that pay for them, it will cause an upheaval on Madison Avenue.

There among the chrome steel skyscrapers of New York City's heartland, along a one-mile stretch known informally as Advertising Alley or Ulcer Gulch, are found the flannel-suited men who control what the public sees on television.

Most of the power is held not by the TV networks which broadcast the shows but by the advertising agencies which produce the commercials. For the advertising dollar is almighty king of commercial television.

In the great struggle to win milady's approval of one deodorant or lipstick over another, the agencies resort to hyperbole and deception. They use such trickery as soaping the beer glass to improve the foam or treating the margarine sample with glycerine to make it appear fresher than brand X.

Madison Avenue Literature

Their writers and composers draw fancy salaries to create such immortal verses as: "Winstons taste good like a cigarette should." They drum home the message that thinking men smoke Viceroys, although most thinking men familiar with the lung-cancer reports wouldn't smoke at all.

Behind all the claims and slogans, most products are frustratingly similar to their competitors. The chief difference often lies in the advertising approach. This has led to misleading advertising which is a worse hoax upon the public than the rigged shows.

For example, the P. Lorillard Tobacco Company joined in sponsoring the scandal-scuttled $64,000 Challenge" to extol the merits of Kent Cigarettes' new "micronite" filter. This antiseptic gadget was hailed by the announcer as "so safe, so pure, it's used to filter the air in leading hospitals." Yet at the same time, the company was pooh-poohing medical claims in its Old Gold commercials which offered "a treat, not a treatment."

Cough Up $40,000

Earlier this year, Lorillard was fined $40,000 for failing to abide by a 1950 court decree cracking down on "deceptive" Old Gold advertising. The original Federal Trade Commission complaint charged the company with "unfair methods of competition" in advertising Old Golds.

Basis of the complaint was Lorillard's repeated claim that Old Golds contained less tars and nicotine, hence were less irritating to the throat than other leading brands. The company backed up its claim with a Reader's Digest article which indeed showed that the tar-nicotine content of Old Golds was lower than other brands.

The advertising didn't mention, however, that the nicotine difference was only 1/177,187th of an ounce and that the Reader's Digest article concluded: "The laboratory's general conclusion will be sad news for the advertising copywriters but good news to the smoker who need no longer worry as to which cigarette can most effectively nail down his coffin. For one nail is just about as good as another . . . No single brand is so superior to its competitors as to justify its selection on the ground that it is less harmful."

Despite the court decree ordering Lorillard to lay off the hokum, the company continued to make fictitious claims of Old Gold superiority. Result: Lorillard and its lawyers were haled before the Court of Appeals to show cause why the company shouldn't be cited for contempt.

"Flagrant Contempt"

The FTC complained to the court that Lorillard had "brushed aside, ignored and displayed utter indifference to, and defiance of, the (1950) direction of the court." Such action, the FTC charged, constituted "open, wilful, premeditated, deliberate, and flagrant contempt of the decree of this court."

The company was ordered to shell out a $40,000 fine. But it promptly hired Edward Howrey, a former FTC chairman, to try to persuade the FTC to tone down its hostility toward Old Gold advertising.

Note—The great B. B. D. & O. advertising agency, which toots the horn for clients of such diversity as Campbell's Soup and the Republican party, once found itself advertising filter cigarettes and promoting a Reader's Digest expose of filter cigarettes at the same time. Having a sense of ethics, the agency promptly dropped the small Reader's Digest account but remained true to the big-spending American Tobacco Company.

Red Tape Eater

With an avenging pencil, this reporter set out last week to slay another dragon said to be preying on the taxpayers. The culprit was a chief inspector for the Border Patrol, William M. Davis, who stood accused of misappropriating government property.

It turned out Davis had requisitioned surplus material from Maywood Air Force Base, Calif., without going through the proper channels. His "ulterior" purpose: To reduce the cost of improvements on the post he commanded at Chula Vista, Calif., near the Mexican border.

He even indulged in some horse-trading with government property when he could find a deal that would save the taxpayers money. His men put in hundreds of hours overtime without pay fixing up the premises. Their volunteer work saved the government several thousand dollars. They would turn out willingly with tools and brushes because of their loyalty and affection for Davis.

Yet the fact remains that Davis helped himself to surplus property and cut red tape without always obtaining official permission. For offending his superiors' sensibilities, he was summarily investigated, stripped of his authority to draw surplus material, and shipped off to Richmond, Va.

The dragon was chased off to other pastures not for feeding upon tax dollars but for chewing up red tape.

Secret Police Chief Heads Chinese Red Army

By Joseph Alsop

HONG KONG

In Communist China, too many storm warnings have been given in recent months. The warnings suggest that the Chinese people are entering a period of national agony crudely comparable to the agony endured by the Russian people during the early five-year plans.

Among these storm warnings, the darkest and most meaningful is certainly the recent, abrupt change in the army high command. Amid a drumfire of denunciations of "right oppositionists," Minister of Defense and hero of the Korean war, Gen. Peng Teh-Huai, was suddenly cashiered and replaced by his ailing old-time rival, Gen. Lin Piao. Much more significantly, the Chief of Staff, Gen. Huang Ko-Cheng, was also cashiered and replaced by none other than the chief of the secret police, Gen. Lo Jui-Ching.

Among those who know far more about China than this reporter there is a certain tendency to explain this extraordinary event in relatively ordinary terms. Superficially, there are some grounds for doing so.

For over a year, Chinese Communist publications meant to be read by the inner group have been revealing a sharp, three-point argument about the "Peoples' Liberation Army." Persons unnamed have been sharply lectured because they hankered for a modern, Soviet-style army, instead of an army still organized on the "immortal" principles laid down by Mao Tse-tung for the guerilla war.

The same unnamed persons have been lectured, because of their resistance to domination of the army by the sacred Communist party's political commissars. And the lectures have also insisted on the rightness of the widespread use of army units as labor troops and of the requirement, established about a year ago, that all army officers annually serve one month in the ranks.

Evidently this dispute about army policy has been serious. It could quitely easily explain the simple dismissals of Gen. Peng and Gen. Huang. One can imagine the veteran Peng Teh-Huai presuming on an association with Mao Tse-Tung reaching back to the time before the famous "long march." One can picture him affronting Mao by his obstinate arguments for truly professional and modern armed forces.

Then too, Gen. Lin Piao's return to active politics after long illness, was announced by his appointment to the inner group of the Chinese Politburo about a year ago. One can equally well imagine Gen. Lin inflaming Mao against his rival, Gen. Peng.

Yet the dispute about army policy cannot reasonably be used to explain the strangest and most dramatic feature of the changes in the high command. This was the choice of the secret police boss, Gen. Lo, as the new army Chief of Staff. This is almost on a par with Stalin's naming Marshal Beria to run the Red Army when he exiled Gen. Zhukov. And even Stalin dared not do this, no doubt because of the bitter enmity that always exists, in all such societies, between the professional army and the police apparatus.

Why then choose Lo instead of a pliable army careerist? There is also evidence to answer this question. For example, Chinese army officers used to be allowed to have their families with them. But all the "dependents" (our own ugly word) were abruptly sent back to their villages at almost the exact moment when all the villages of China were entering the remorseless meat-grinder of the rural communes.

The simultaneous loss of privilege and exposure to the general misery must have been a shock. The effect of this and comparable measures on the army was in turn revealed in an astonishing passage in Gen. Lin Piao's speech on the tenth anniversary of the Chinese revolution.

"Owing to the fact that the overwhelming majority of our officers and combatants are farmers," said Lin darkly, "it is quite natural that some comrades. . . consider their problems based on interests of a transient and local nature. . . and petty bourgeois ideology."

This is a wonderfully unashamed admission that being a peasant gives rise to dangerous thoughts about the Chinese peasants' and workers' Soviet Socialist Republic. It is one of several pointers indicating that the party leadership changed the high command because they feared that the communes program was causing actual disaffection in the army, the main prop of the regime. Perhaps they also noticed that whereas the Hungarian army ended by fighting side by side with the Hungarian people, the secret police, the AVO, were admirably loyal to their employers.

From such pointers, one may deduce the nature of Gen. Lo Jui-Ching's task. But one wonders what will happen to the Chinese people when the ex-secret police chief has reformed the Chinese army to his liking.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

PATH TO SUMMIT—President Eisenhower wants to limit discussion at the forthcoming summit meeting to the problems of Berlin and disarmament.

He is determined to keep the agenda down to these two matters in order to keep the meeting short and, more important, to find out once and for all whether the Soviet leaders really want to ease world tension or just talk about it.

Oddly enough, government experts believe that the President will have more trouble in working up an agenda with the Allies than he will have from the Russians. West Germany's leaders are deeply concerned about the outcome of any talks on the future status of Berlin.

France, on the other hand, is reluctant to discuss disarmament at this stage of her own atomic weapons program. The French have been extremely sensitive to their long lag in atomic weapons and fear that the U. S., Britain and Russia will try to freeze atomic weapons at their present status.

France's leaders claim they cannot tolerate such an agreement, as it would relegate their country to the status of a second-rate power for the foreseeable future.

England is pressing so hard for a summit meeting that she is likely to side with whatever view seems predominant on matters of an agenda. If the Allies are hopelessly split, some informed persons in the State department believe she may even side with the Russians on the question.

President Eisenhower is fully aware of the cross-currents that beset the path to the summit. He therefore is advocating a western summit meeting first to thrash out differences and face the Russians as a united force.

Erratic Market

By Leslie Gould

NEW YORK — In the face of the continued stalemate in the steel strike and a developing slow down in other lines due to steel shortages, the stock market moved irregularly higher in October.

It was an erratic market, with the electronic glamor stocks and the shares of the two small motor car makers scoring big gains. The small motors accounted for the bulk of the trading in several of the sessions, while the shares of their big brothers made no progress.

In this department's tabulation of 36 leading stock groups, 25 were higher on the month and 11 lower.

The weak spots were the aluminums, aircraft manufacturing, can, rails, sugars and motor accessories.

The strong groups were radio-tv manufacturing, motors, mining, radio broadcasting, automation, cements, machine tools, communications, electrical equipments and rubbers.

The steel news dominated, but even so the steel shares as a group held their own. This performance was interesting in face of the sharp drop in third quarter earnings and the likelihood of a not too good fourth quarter even if the strike is settled or a Taft-Hartley resumption takes place. Hopes of extra dividends for this group have gone.

In the glamor stocks, Texas Instruments gained 36½, Zenith 18¼, Litton 20⅝, General Tire 11½, Thiokol 13 and Ampex 29¼.

Part of these speculations was due to the shift in the missile program, with indications of increased spending.

Speculators in the small motors had a field day. American Motors gained 22⅜, and at its high of 82½ was up 24 ⅞. Its low was 75½ this year. Studebaker regular common picked up 6⅝ and the when-issued 4⅛. Shorts are trapped in all these issues, and the market in the two Studebaker shares couldn't be more confusing.

The market ignored the fact that regardless of when the steel strike is settled and how this is accomplished, business will be slowed down. General Motors in reporting excellent earnings stated it was running out of steel and is shutting down many of its operations.

It will take time to get the mills back in production—probably four to five weeks before full production can be resumed. If it is a Taft-Hartley resumption, conditions will be chaotic, for customers will scramble to buy in fear of a resumption of the walk out at the end of the 80-day cooling off period.

Tax selling and tax switching is becoming an increasing factor in the market. The oils, which have been depressed because of the world wide overproduction, have been subject to this kind of selling.

Third quarter earnings reports have been better than expected. A number of companies showed record profits. A number of companies have voted stock splits. Allied Chemical and Westinghouse voted two for one splits.

Inhalers, Pink Elephants, And Vitamins

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

The original Benzedrine inhalers contained 250 mg. of amphetamine. Prison inmates and drug addicts found they could bring on a major jag by opening the inhaler and chewing the paper filters. Amphetamine intoxication is understandable with this quantity, considering that the medical dose varies from 5 to 30 mg.

When a better nasal decongestant became available, the manufacturers of the inhalers decided to use it rather than Benzedrine. The habit of chewing the contents stopped abruptly. In the last 10 years, these inhalers have been used without stigma.

But recently a new inhaler containing the same old amphetamine was introduced by a different maker. After a rash of robberies, holdups, and muggings in Kansas City, Mo., police found that groups of teenagers were the new users. Water was put in the inhalers and sloshed about until the contents were absorbed. Then the solution was injected into an arm with a needle. The FDA stepped in and now the sale of amphetamine inhalers without a prescription is forbidden.

The pink elephants an alcoholic sees on the wall are really gray, according to Dr. Rollo N. Harger. The Indiana professor of biochemistry and toxicology asserts that the effects of alcohol on vision are similar to those that occur while driving with sun glasses at twilight. The nervous system is too clouded to differentiate tones and the world is not as rosy to the drinker as it appears.

Dr. Casimir Funk is regarded as the father of vitamin therapy. In 1911 he isolated a substance from rice polishings that cured beri-beri. He called the product "vitamine" because it is essential to life. Dr. Funk was 75 this year and continues in active research.

TODAY'S HEALTH HINT

WANTS PROGNOSIS

C. K. writes: My mother died of cancer at 51 and my aunt of the same malady at 57. My father died of a heart attack at 58. But both my grandparents are alive and I also have some long lived great-aunts. What do you think is in the cards for me, longevitywise?

REPLY

A long life, if you have a thorough examination every year and follow the rules of health. In this way, cancer and heart trouble can be detected in time to treat them successfully.

COLICKY BABY

Mrs. T. writes: My 3 month old baby has colic and cries all during an attack. What can be done to ease these spasms?

REPLY

Most physicians attempt to find the cause by altering the diet; milk, for example, is a common offender. In addition, they prescribe drugs to ease spasm. If these measures fail to give relief, X-rays are in order.

SISTERS' BLOOD

G. L. writes: Do full sisters have the same blood type?

REPLY

This would depend upon the blood group of the parents. If both father and mother are O, all the children would be O. But if one parent is O and the other A, then the children might be O or A. Similarly, if one parent is A and the other B, the children might be O, A, B, or AB.

BONE INFECTION

W. D. writes: Does osteomyelitis in the shin bone turn to cancer?

REPLY

No. The cause of cancer is not known but I doubt if infection of the bone plays a role. In the past, many persons suffered from osteomyelitis but it was not followed by bone cancer.

TOMORROW: Stress in migrainous children.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

Joe Welch, the brilliant Massachusetts lawyer who achieved national fame at the Army-McCarthy hearings, told Editor Curtiss Anderson, "Storms never frighten me. My intellect tells me I could get hurt or even killed, but is there any more graceful, natural way to die than by a sudden, beautiful stroke of lightning coming down from the skies? And I'd rather be hit by a tornado than some hellish machine built by human beings . . . I guess you'd say I simply have an attitude about weather!"

To prove his point, Mr. Welch has filled his Cape Cod cottage with a wide variety of weather instruments, with which he plots in detail the pattern of "good nor'easter" gales.

Overheard in a Hollywood studio (the mother of a precocious child star talking): "I put my foot down firmly on my daughter acting before she was five. I was determined that she should have a normal childhood!"

The British nudist association has adopted a policy of screening applicants. Those nudists are particular who they rub shoulders with.

The British nudists are checking the character of everyone who wants to join. Anyone who tries to get in out of bare curiosity will get a severe dressing up.

The past hot summer fattened British nudist rolls by 30 per cent, all together. That's showing some pretty good figures.

Area Teachers Enrolled In New Science Workshop

SHEPHERDSTOWN, W. Va.—Eighteen teachers from six counties have enrolled in a science workshop at Shepherd College, it has been announced by Prof. Ray Harris, director.

Purpose of the workshop which is to run for six Saturdays is to develop a curriculum for teaching science in the elementary schools and to learn and explore teaching methods and simple demonstrations.

The workshop, first of its kind to be organized in West Virginia, is promoted and financed by the National Defense Education Act and co-sponsored by the State Department of Education and Shepherd College.

At the initial meeting, teachers participating in the workshop decided they would study matter and its changes, Earth, weather, plants, animals, the human body, energy, medicine, and exploration of the skies, according to Dr. William Simpson, assistant director.

Imported Christmas Trees May Spread Gypsy Moth

West Virginians Issued Warning

CHARLESTON, W. Va. — Commissioner of Agriculture John T. Johnson issued a warning to Christmas tree importers that they may bring a multi-million dollar forest pest into West Virginia unless they have trees from the New England states inspected at the shipping point. Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts, most of New Hampshire and Vermont and a section of Maine and New York are now under U.S. Department of Agriculture Gypsy Moth quarantine to restrict the movement of items which may spread the pest.

This insect is a destructive pest of almost every important tree. The federal government and affected states have started vigorous control programs in an effort to bring the pest under control. In West Virginia, all precautionary measures are coordinated with the federal agency.

So far, West Virginia does not have the moth. F. Waldo Craig, who heads plant pest control work for the State Department of Agriculture said that he and his agents have made annual statewide surveys for the pest during the past 10 years.

Johnson said it is estimated that one to five per cent of the state's annual Christmas tree sales come from the states now infested with Gypsy Moth.

All common carriers, post masters and other means of organized transportation are now working with the quarantine officials. Johnson said the danger lies in the independent trucker or buyer who may unknowingly bring infested trees into the state.

Craig said the pest feeds on leaves and is spread by the egg clusters on twigs and branches.

Flower Arrangements Shown At Woman's Club

MOOREFIELD—C. J. Wagner, of Ren Roy Flowers, Cumberland, Md., gave a demonstration on flower arranging at the Woman's Club of Moorefield Monday night at the Hardy County Public Library building.

Mr. Wagner took a "festive board," a tall three-candle candleabra, a low, flat bowl, a tall pitcher and a tree shaped rack and fashioned a Thanksgiving arrangement, two Christmas pieces, a swag for a door and a timeless modern arrangement of chrysanthemums and greens. He used chrysanthemums, red carnations, various kinds of greens, cut pine cones, glittering decorations and bits of ribbon and chenille. As he was designing the arrangements, he kept up a running commentary on how to preserve flowers, what tools to use and what could be done with a little ingenuity.

Ernie Banks Is Selected Most Valuable Player In N.L.

Chicago Star Given Honor Second Time

Set New Record In Fielding For Major Shortstops

BOSTON (AP) — Ernie Banks, the Chicago Cubs' hard-hitting infielder who set a major league fielding record for shortstops this season, was named the National League's most valuable player of 1959 Wednesday.

The 28-year-old slugger also won the award last year.

Banks, who set a major league mark by committing only 12 errors in 155 games, drew 10 of the 22 first place votes cast by the Baseball Writers Assn. of America in the eight National League cities.

On Every Ballot

Banks thus became the first National League player to be named to the honor in consecutive years since the baseball writers took over selection of the most valuable player in 1931.

He was named on every ballot and drew a total of 232½ points.

Eddie Mathews, Milwaukee's third baseman, drew five first place votes, was named in a tie with Banks on another and finished second in the balloting with 189½ points.

Hank Aaron of Milwaukee and Los Angeles' Wally Moon got the only other first place votes. Aaron, the National League batting champion, collected two first place selections and 174 total points, while Moon was named first on four ballots and had 161 total points.

"Gee, that's great. I'll be dancing all night," Banks said in Chicago when informed of his selection by Hy Hurwitz, secretary of the baseball writers group.

"I never expected this. I thought I might have a chance, but didn't think I'd have much of a chance. After all, Henry Aaron had a fabulous year over at Milwaukee and Willie Mays with the Giants and Lew Burdette also had great years," he said.

Led The Majors

Banks led the majors in runs batted in with 143, finished second to Mathews in the National League home run race with 45 and hit .304.

Bill Fugitt, W. Va. School Sports Program Head, Dies

Attended Grid Clinics Here For Many Years

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — Bill Fugitt used to lay awake nights worrying about the numerous attacks on him for his handling of West Virginia's high school sports program.

No one in state athletic circles was subjected to more abuse than the executive secretary of the State Secondary School Activities Commission. And it may be a difficult job to find some one who can roll with the punch as well as he.

Fugitt died at the age of 62 Tuesday night from a cerebral hemorrhage after 13 years in the job. In his last conscious moments he was discussing the administration of the state scholastic sports program — specifically, this year's football championship playoff games.

Death came shortly before 11 p.m., within an hour after he suffered a stroke at his home here. Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. at the First Baptist Church of Beckley.

Much of the criticism of Fugitt came from sports writers as a result of rulings which he often did not make alone. He was only secretary of the Activities Commission and its three - member appeals board, which made most of the controversial decisions.

Didn't Make Rules

He once confided:

"The criticism written about me by sports writers has been mighty rough at times and it took me several years to develop a certain degree of insensitivity to it. It used to keep me awake at night.

"I finally convinced myself that they were not familiar with the total concept of the program and while some of the things said about me have been vicious, I am just a convenient whipping boy. So many people can't realize I don't make the rules; I just carry them out."

Fugitt's administration of the sports programs of both the junior and senior high school levels in the state received more recognition outside West Virginia than at home.

He was immediate past president of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Assns. and had been a member of the federation's executive committee for six years.

Recently Fugitt told a friend that he had considered for some time retiring from what has been described as probably the most thankless job of any kind in the state. But he kept putting it off because, he said, in spite of all the guff, he liked working with kids.

Against Naming Champion

Fugitt often expressed concern about the emphasis on winning among some high schools.

Although much of his time was spent working with the football ratings and playoffs, he personally was not in favor of any means of designating a state champion.

It was his private view that this only increased the pressure to turn out winning teams.

"Everybody likes to win but when it becomes such a serious business in high school, I think we're going the wrong way," he confided. "But that's the way they (the schools) want it and I can only carry out their wishes as best I know how."

Fugitt, who looked 10 to 15 years younger than his 62 years, worked long hours not only with the school sports and extra-curricular programs but in directing the annual Mountaineer Boys State, sponsored by the American Legion at Jackson's Mill.

Boys State, a week-long "short course" in governmental operations for outstanding high school juniors, was probably closer to his heart than any other of Fugitt's activities.

Fugitt first came to Cumberland at the invitation of Arthur G. Ramey, then supervisor of physical education for the Allegany County Board of Education, to attend a football rules clinic sponsored by the Board of Education in 1950.

Along with Fugitt at the initial grid clinic were Henry Porter, executive secretary of the National Federation of State High School Associations, and Art A. Schaminger, director of Official Sports Films. Both are from Chicago.

Fugitt continued to attend the annual clinics here each year until last season. He was well known throughout Western Maryland and West Virginia points and was an expert on rules.

Ramey said last night he had attended several national federation conventions with Fugitt and had nominated him for the presidency of the body.

Nugent Sees Hard Contest With Middies

Picks Navy Line As One Of Toughest

BALTIMORE (AP) — "I predict you'll see some real bombing, some hard-nosed hitting," Coach Tom Nugent of Maryland said Wednesday about his team's clash with Navy Saturday night.

Both Nugent and Coach Wayne Hardin of Navy had complimentary things to say about the other's team although neither sought to gloss over their losses.

Both refused to be downhearted and reported their players weren't either at a luncheon meeting of the Baltimore Sports Reporters Assn.

"We have a scrappy outfit, they believe in themselves," said Nugent. "They're never going to let anybody overpower them man to man."

He conceded Maryland is short handed on personnel overall.

"I think they're (Navy) going to be the best line we've played against except for Syracuse which is in a class by itself," Hardin said. "They look better than Notre Dame, quicker and more aggressive.

Navy was beaten in the last minute 25-22 by Notre Dame. "Navy played a wonderful game," praised Nugent.

Hardin agreed that the Navy players seemed to have found something despite the Notre Dame loss that makes them the "best as far as mental attitude and desire since I've been at the Academy." Hardin moved up to head coach this year after four years as assistant.

Both teams will be operating below full player strength Saturday night in Memorial Stadium.

Injured Navy players are Capt. Jim Dunn, center, end Tom Abershart, and center Frank Gansz.

Both of Maryland's starting halfbacks, Everett Cloud and Gene Verardi, are hurt. Cloud is not expected to play at all while Verardi will be available for limited action.

Two sophomores, Jim Davidson and Joe Mona of Hillcrest Heights, Md., will start instead. Mona is a converted end.

Cannon Named Back-Of-Week

Long Punt Return Beat Ole Miss

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — When the going got rough for Louisiana State, Billy Cannon got going on an 89-yard punt return through five tacklers for a touchdown.

The feat won top-ranked LSU a 7-3 victory over Mississippi Saturday and Cannon the Associated Press back-of-the-week honors.

And it may have given him a chance to repeat All-America honors if he can couple it with a good season finish.

The run may go down in history.

Cannon said he didn't plan to take the long bouncing, 47-yard punt from Jake Gibbs on the LSU 11. His own earlier fumble had helped Ole Miss to a 3-0 lead and he didn't want to take any chances.

The ball took a high bounce," Cannon said, "and fell right into my arms....I took two steps forward and just started running."

He has gained 1,647 yards rushing during his three-year college career. Three regular season games, against Tennessee, Mississippi State and Tulane, remain on the LSU schedule.

The 22-year old senior, father of three daughters, is driving to top the school record 1,707.

Cannon has shouldered a major share of the load shifted by the graduation last year of J W. Brodnax, then his attack running partner on the team that rocketed to fame.

This year, under a tougher schedule, Cannon has led his team in scoring, rushing, pass receiving, interception returns, punt returns and kickoff returns. And he has been second in punting.

"I've never seen a better run in football," LSU Coach Paul Dietzel said.

The coach who lost because of it, Johnny Vaught of Ole Miss, said: "It was the greatest run I ever saw in the toughest ball game I ever played."

No Cal-USC Break Seen

Apology Sent In Bates Case

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chancellor of the University of California, said Wednesday Cal is "not contemplating a break in athletic relations with the University of Southern California" over the McKeever, an All-America candidate, deliberately elbowed Cal halfback Steve Bates in Saturday's Cal-USC game.

California's student governing body urged the university not to play football against USC again if McKeever is a member of the team.

California officials have charged, and USC Coach Don Clark and McKeever have denied, that the 218-pound guard deliberately hit halfback Bates with an elbow in falling on him along the sidelines after the whistle had blown last Saturday. The Trojans won 14-7.

McKeever contends he could not stop nor change direction.

Bates is hospitalized with a shattered cheek bone and broken nose. He is out for the season. An operation is scheduled Friday.

USC President Norman Topping, who viewed movies of the play in Berkeley Monday, said in a statement Tuesday night the incident as well as others in the game could have been avoided.

"To the extent that we are responsible, we apologize," Topping said.

Ernie Banks Is Selected Most Valuable Player In N.L.

Chicago Star Given Honor Second Time

Set New Record In Fielding For Major Shortstops

BOSTON (AP) — Ernie Banks, the Chicago Cubs' hard-hitting infielder who set a major league fielding record for shortstops this season, was named the National League's most valuable player of 1959 Wednesday.

The 28-year-old slugger also won the award last year.

Banks, who set a major league mark by committing only 12 errors in 155 games, drew 10 of the 22 first place votes cast by the Baseball Writers Assn. of America in the eight National League cities.

On Every Ballot

Banks thus became the first National League player to be named to the honor in consecutive years since the baseball writers took over selection of the most valuable player in 1931.

He was named on every ballot and drew a total of 232½ points.

Eddie Mathews, Milwaukee's third baseman, drew five first place votes, was named in a tie with Banks on another and finished second in the balloting with 189½ points.

Hank Aaron of Milwaukee and Los Angeles' Wally Moon got the only other first place votes. Aaron, the National League batting champion, collected two first place selections and 174 total points, while Moon was named first on four ballots and had 161 total points.

"Gee, that's great. I'll be dancing all night," Banks said in Chicago when informed of his selection by Hy Hurwitz, secretary of the baseball writers group.

"I never expected this. I thought I might have a chance, but didn't think I'd have much of a chance. After all, Henry Aaron had a fabulous year over at Milwaukee and Willie Mays with the Giants and Lew Burdette also had great years," he said.

Led The Majors

Banks led the majors in runs batted in with 143, finished second to Mathews in the National League home run race with 45 and hit .304.

Attended Grid Clinics Here For Many Years

BECKLEY, W. Va. (UPI) — Bill Fugitt used to lay awake nights worrying about the numerous attacks on him for his handling of West Virginia's high school sports program.

No one in state athletic circles was subjected to more abuse than the executive secretary of the State Secondary School Activities Commission. And it may be a difficult job to find some one who can roll with the punch as well as he.

Fugitt died at the age of 62 Tuesday night from a cerebral hemorrhage after 13 years in the job. In his last conscious moments he was discussing the administration of the state scholastic sports program — specifically, this year's football championship playoff games.

Death came shortly before 11 p.m., within an hour after he suffered a stroke at his home here. Funeral services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. at the First Baptist Church of Beckley.

Much of the criticism of Fugitt came from sports writers as a result of rulings which he often did not make alone. He was only secretary of the Activities Commission and its three - member appeals board, which made most of the controversial decisions.

Didn't Make Rules

He once confided:

"The criticism written about me by sports writers has been mighty rough at times and it took me several years to develop a certain degree of insensitivity to it. It used to keep me awake at night.

"I finally convinced myself that they were not familiar with the total concept of the program and while some of the things said about me have been vicious, I am just a convenient whipping boy. So many people can't realize I don't make the rules; I just carry them out."

Fugitt's administration of the sports programs of both the junior and senior high school levels in the state received more recognition outside West Virginia than at home.

He was immediate past president of the National Federation of State High School Athletic Assns. and had been a member of the federation's executive committee for six years.

Recently Fugitt told a friend that he had considered for some time retiring from what has been described as probably the most thankless job of any kind in the state. But he kept putting it off because, he said, in spite of all the guff, he liked working with kids.

Against Naming Champion

Fugitt often expressed concern about the emphasis on winning among some high schools.

Although much of his time was spent working with the football ratings and playoffs, he personally was not in favor of any means of designating a state champion.

It was his private view that this only increased the pressure to turn out winning teams.

"Everybody likes to win but when it becomes such a serious business in high school, I think we're going the wrong way," he confided. "But that's the way they (the schools) want it and I can only carry out their wishes as best I know how."

Fugitt, who looked 10 to 15 years younger than his 62 years, worked long hours not only with the school sports and extra-curricular programs but in directing the annual Mountaineer Boys State, sponsored by the American Legion at Jackson's Mill.

Boys State, a week-long "short course" in governmental operations for outstanding high school juniors, was probably closer to his heart than any other of Fugitt's activities.

Fugitt first came to Cumberland at the invitation of Arthur G. Ramey, then supervisor of physical education for the Allegany County Board of Education, to attend a football rules clinic sponsored by the Board of Education in 1950.

Along with Fugitt at the initial grid clinic were Henry Porter, executive secretary of the National Federation of State High School Associations, and Art A. Schaminger, director of Official Sports Films. Both are from Chicago.

Fugitt continued to attend the annual clinics here each year until last season. He was well known throughout Western Maryland and West Virginia points and was an expert on rules.

Ramey said last night he had attended several national federation conventions with Fugitt and had nominated him for the presidency of the body.

Cannon Named Back-Of-Week

Long Punt Return Beat Ole Miss

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — When the going got rough for Louisiana State, Billy Cannon got going on an 89-yard punt return through five tacklers for a touchdown.

The feat won top-ranked LSU a 7-3 victory over Mississippi Saturday and Cannon the Associated Press back-of-the-week honors.

And it may have given him a chance to repeat All-America honors if he can couple it with a good season finish.

The run may go down in history.

Cannon said he didn't plan to take the long bouncing, 47-yard punt from Jake Gibbs on the LSU 11. His own earlier fumble had helped Ole Miss to a 3-0 lead and he didn't want to take any chances.

The ball took a high bounce," Cannon said, "and fell right into my arms....I took two steps forward and just started running."

He has gained 1,647 yards rushing during his three-year college career. Three regular season games, against Tennessee, Mississippi State and Tulane, remain on the LSU schedule.

The 22-year old senior, father of three daughters, is driving to top the school record 1,707.

No Cal-USC Break Seen

Apology Sent In Bates Case

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg, chancellor of the University of California, said Wednesday Cal is "not contemplating a break in athletic relations with the University of Southern California" over the McKeever, an All-America candidate, deliberately elbowed Cal halfback Steve Bates in Saturday's Cal-USC game.

California's student governing body urged the university not to play football against USC again if McKeever is a member of the team.

California officials have charged, and USC Coach Don Clark and McKeever have denied, that the 218-pound guard deliberately hit halfback Bates with an elbow in falling on him along the sidelines after the whistle had blown last Saturday. The Trojans won 14-7.

McKeever contends he could not stop nor change direction.

Bates is hospitalized with a shattered cheek bone and broken nose. He is out for the season. An operation is scheduled Friday.

USC President Norman Topping, who viewed movies of the play in Berkeley Monday, said in a statement Tuesday night the incident as well as others in the game could have been avoided.

"To the extent that we are responsible, we apologize," Topping said.

Perez Makes 9th Defense

Flyweight Title Bout In Japan

The scheduled 15-round bout is the first world title fight ever held in Osaka. It will be televised throughout Japan.

Slender Yaoita, 24, won a non-title 10-round decision over Perez in January. But the 33-year-old champion from Argentina will be favored at about 9-5 to beat Yaoita this time at 15 rounds because his superior punching, particularly to the body, is expected to wither Sadao in the late sessions.

Yaoita, Far Eastern champion, won 31 of his 39 professional bouts. He lost six and had two draws. The more experienced Perez had 53 fights, in which he suffered only one defeat and one draw.

Defense Aids NFL Leaders

Giants And 49ers Lead Statistics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The New York Giants and the San Francisco 49ers are proof that a good defense is the best offense.

National Football League statistics showed Wednesday that the Giants — leaders in the Eastern Conference — and the 49ers — leaders in the Western — are down the list in team offense but high on defense.

San Francisco, a surprise 5-1, is fifth in offense but second in defense. New York, 5-1, is sixth in offense and third in defense.

San Francisco has picked up 1,197 yards on the ground to 762 yards in the air. On defense, the 49ers have given up 766 yards rushing and 865 passing.

New York has picked up 1,916 yards in offense and has given up only 1,605.

Los Angeles, 2-4 for the season, continues to hold the lead in team offense with 2,159 yards.

Green Bay, 3-3, has given up only 1,607 yards to lead in total team defense.

Curtailment Of Half-Milers In Maryland Is Advocated

Race Commission May Seek Tracks Consolidation

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Horse races and county fairs ceased to be a mutual attraction a long time ago in Maryland. The horses may even leave some fair grounds entirely and be seen only at "big apples."

There now are 12 days each at Cumberland, Hagerstown, Bel Air, Marlboro and Timonium.

The track operators themselves are thinking about some new moves so something is liable to happen.

It will have to be done soon if they are to come about next year. The Legislature has to approve any change in the number of days and their permanent transfer. It meets in February.

A shortage of horses was added to the competition for the racing dollar and people the past year to cause the serious concern.

A lack of horses prompted Cumberland to transfer its 12 days to Hagerstown. The move removed whatever excuse remained of the traditional idea that the horses races at the minor tracks were associated with county fairs.

The past year, only Timonium—site of the State Fair—had horse racing the same time. None of the four other county fairs was held even the same month as the racing.

Betting at the five minor tracks this year amounted to $18,868,459. That was $2,984,383 below 1958. The number of bettors was 30,632 less.

Oddly enough, the only association which didn't experience a decline was Cumberland. By moving to Hagerstown, its handle went up approximately $300,000. It still was the lowest total at $2,733,872.

Maryland's minor tracks were hurt mostly this year by the operation of two just across the border at Charles Town, W. Va. They operated the same time as all five in Maryland with the same type of horses and bettors. There just isn't enough to go around for either to reap a great deal.

This started the minor tracks in Maryland to casting about for ways to recoup. They have talked about racing at nights, extending their meetings or getting together.

In the speculation about combining, Timonium, Bel Air and Marlboro appear as the most likely to continue. They all handled more than 4 million dollars this year.

However, the talk of switching minor racing dates, set off conjecture on a new tack.

Many racing people have felt for a long time that the major tracks at Laurel, Pimlico and Bowie should have more than their present 40 days each.

Mere addition did not seem the answer since the total number of Maryland racing days a year already is 276. This includes 24 nights each for 2 four harness tracks.

So the squirming among the minors has led to some exploration into a transfer of some days to the big tracks.

Nebraska Star Celebrates His 19th Birthday

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Ron Meade, Nebraska's sophomore field goal and conversion kick expert who celebrated his 19th birthday Wednesday, never tried a field goal kick in a game until this season.

Then, in Nebraska's 25-21 upset victory over Oklahoma Saturday, Ron booted two which contributed heavily to the huskers' history-making victory.

"I kicked a lot of extra points in high school, but never a field goal," Ron explained.

Back in Canby, Minn., where he was a prep star, mastering the art of place kicking was a family project, he continued. His mother held the ball and his father shagged it while Ron was developing the skill that helped Nebraska hang the first Big Eight Conference loss on Oklahoma in 13 years.

Atlanta Quits Southern Loop

Mobile Director Resigns Position

NEW ORLEANS (UPI) — Atlanta kicked in its franchise Wednesday and the director of the Mobile Baseball Club resigned at the Southern Association meeting.

Owen Martinez resigned as director of the Mobile club, and was replaced by Jamo McPhillip.

The league also approved the transfer of the Memphis franchise from the Memphis Baseball Club, Inc., to the Memphis Chicks, Inc. whose president is Leo R. Burson, the new director of the Memphis club replacing Danny Menendez.

Earl Mann turned his Atlanta franchise back to the league as expected. The association said it would make every effort to find a new operator and Little Rock loomed as a large possibility. The Arkansas city, which sold its franchise to Shreveport last year, said it was still interested in a franchise.

Six clubs reported set for operation next year. Chattanooga was still uncertain because no final decision had been made by Washington on what it would do with the franchise.

The season opening date was changed to April 16.

Perez Makes 9th Defense

Flyweight Title Bout In Japan

The scheduled 15-round bout is the first world title fight ever held in Osaka. It will be televised throughout Japan.

Slender Yaoita, 24, won a non-title 10-round decision over Perez in January. But the 33-year-old champion from Argentina will be favored at about 9-5 to beat Yaoita this time at 15 rounds because his superior punching, particularly to the body, is expected to wither Sadao in the late sessions.

Yaoita, Far Eastern champion, won 31 of his 39 professional bouts. He lost six and had two draws. The more experienced Perez had 53 fights, in which he suffered only one defeat and one draw.

Defense Aids NFL Leaders

Giants And 49ers Lead Statistics

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The New York Giants and the San Francisco 49ers are proof that a good defense is the best offense.

National Football League statistics showed Wednesday that the Giants — leaders in the Eastern Conference — and the 49ers — leaders in the Western — are down the list in team offense but high on defense.

San Francisco, a surprise 5-1, is fifth in offense but second in defense. New York, 5-1, is sixth in offense and third in defense.

49er Coach Red Hickey has proved another thing — a pro team can run and win in professional football.

San Francisco has picked up 1,197 yards on the ground to 762 yards in the air. On defense, the 49ers have given up 766 yards rushing and 865 passing.

New York has picked up 1,916 yards in offense and has given up only 1,605.

Los Angeles, 2-4 for the season, continues to hold the lead in team offense with 2,159 yards.

Green Bay, 3-3, has given up only 1,607 yards to lead in total team defense.

Curtailment Of Half-Milers In Maryland Is Advocated

Race Commission May Seek Tracks Consolidation

By GEORGE BOWEN

BALTIMORE (AP) — Horse races and county fairs ceased to be a mutual attraction a long time ago in Maryland. The horses may even leave some fair grounds entirely and be seen only at "big apples."

Bruce Livie, chairman of the Maryland Racing Commission, says it is thinking seriously about recommending curtailment or consolidation on the minor circuit.

There now are 12 days each at Cumberland, Hagerstown, Bel Air, Marlboro and Timonium.

The track operators themselves are thinking about some new moves so something is liable to happen.

It will have to be done soon if they are to come about next year. The Legislature has to approve any change in the number of days and their permanent transfer. It meets in February.

A shortage of horses was added to the competition for the racing dollar and people the past year to cause the serious concern.

A lack of horses prompted Cumberland to transfer its 12 days to Hagerstown. The move removed whatever excuse remained of the traditional idea that the horses races at the minor tracks were associated with county fairs.

The past year, only Timonium—site of the State Fair—had horse racing the same time. None of the four other county fairs was held even the same month as the racing.

It seems that where betting money is connected, the fairs lose the horses.

Frederick County, for example, continues to have horse racing along with its fair. There is no betting at Frederick.

Betting at the five minor tracks this year amounted to $18,868,459. That was $2,984,383 below 1958. The number of bettors was 30,632 less.

Oddly enough, the only association which didn't experience a decline was Cumberland. By moving to Hagerstown, its handle went up approximately $300,000. It still was the lowest total at $2,733,872.

Maryland's minor tracks were hurt mostly this year by the operation of two just across the border at Charles Town, W. Va. They operated the same time as all five in Maryland with the same type of horses and bettors. There just isn't enough to go around for either to reap a great deal.

This started the minor tracks in Maryland to casting about for ways to recoup. They have talked about racing at nights, extending their meetings or getting together.

In the speculation about combining, Timonium, Bel Air and Marlboro appear as the most likely to continue. They all handled more than 4 million dollars this year.

However, the talk of switching minor racing dates, set off conjecture on a new tack.

Many racing people have felt for a long time that the major tracks at Laurel, Pimlico and Bowie should have more than their present 40 days each.

Mere addition did not seem the answer since the total number of Maryland racing days a year already is 276. This includes 24 nights each for 2 four harness tracks.

So the squirming among the minors has led to some exploration into a transfer of some days to the big tracks.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—With all the excitement over the quiz shows and the refusal to let Hubbell Robinson do "Crime, Inc.", a story of the Mafia, it's nice to know of the applause Sir Laurence Olivier has received for "The Moon and Sixpence," the Somerset Maugham story about the artist Gauguin.

Larry was so pleaded himself that he has agreed to do Dostoevski's "The Idiot," with the same director, Robert Mulligan, and the same writer, S. Lee Pogostin, also for TV. This will be done in the U.S.A., as soon as Larry finishes his stage engagement in "The Entertainer" in London.

I personally think we need better entertainment both in movies and on TV. We have had far too many crime stories. They're not good for the juveniles and certainly put ideas in the heads of some of our wayward youths.

Interesting is the tale that Richard Shepherd of the Jurow-Shepherd team told me. He said that he and Martin (Jurow) engaged Irving Wallace to write a screen treatment on "The Fabulous Barnum" which they will produce as a motion picture next year.

"We asked him to get it out as quickly as he could. Wallace became so fascinated he asked for two weeks more time on the treatment. At the end of the two weeks Wallace said he just couldn't finish the fabulous story of the fabulous Barnum so quickly," said Dick. "So it ended with Wallace writing a complete book which is now on the Book of the Month best seller list, and of course we will use that book for our picture."

I asked Dick about "The Fugitive Kind," which he just finished with Marlon Brando, Joanne Woodward and Anna Magnani. He said he had absolutely no trouble with Marlon. He feels any outbursts from Anna were due to the fact she doesn't understand the English language too well.

The star a producer WANTS for a picture and the one he GETS are sometimes two different things—but I can understand why Sam Bishoff and David Diamond are offering every inducement to Eva Marie Saint to play Mrs. Arnold Rothstein in "The Big Bankroll." Eva would be perfect as the wife of the gambler, Arnold Rothstein, who ruled a gambling empire in the '20's.

Discover Oil Field

TRIPOLI, Libya (UPI)—Oil in commercial quantities had been struck in a new oil field 120 miles southwest of Tripoli. The Libyan Petroleum Commission said the Libyshell Oil Co. hit oil between 8,882 and 8,976 feet down in their exploratory well at Laxen.

Television and Radio

by John Crosby

Hardly A Dent?

In twenty-five years in this business, I have never seen such an organized cover-up as is still going — unsuccessfully, I must admit — in the quiz scandal. I wasn't around during the Teapot Dome investigation but it must have been the same thing. When they blow, they sure blow — but the broadcaster just will not see the signs.

First, there was the effort to hush the whole thing up during the grand jury investigation. This culminated in the successful effort to get Judge Schweitzer to suppress the grand jury presentment. Never in the ninety-year recorded history of the grand jury system in New York County has a presentment been suppressed (only one was expunged after being made public).

This was the silliest thing the broadcasters could have done. The presentment would have been a three-day wonder and that would have been that. Suppressed, it drew the attention of Congress who got — not just the presentment which mentioned no names — but the testimony which told everything, names and all. Still, the effort to suppress went on. In Washington, Congressman Oren Harris announced one day that his committee's investigation would end the next day.

That provoked an inquiry from "The New York Herald Tribune" whether there wasn't just as much evidence of rigging of "$64,000 Question" as of "Twenty-One" and the admission that there was evidence of rigging on that quiz and its brother "$64,000 Challenge." The next day the granddaddy of all the big money quizzes landed on the front pages from which it had been carefully shielded up to that point. Why? The supposition is that no one — even NBC, the competing network — wanted to start a scandal over a quiz that had been owned by the president of a network, and "$64,000 Question" had been the brain child of Louis Cowan, president of the CBS television network.

Television's popular image had received a severe kick in the pants and the question was how to repair it. The forthright and honest answer was Dr. Frank Stanton's — a public admission that television had been wrong and a purge of the malpractices. The other method — and it is being actively pursued — is to pretend that nothing has really happened, that the whole thing is a tempest in a teapot, and what's the fuss all about.

Publicists are pushing this idea —After all, we are only kidding and what harm has been done?—with a remarkable degree of success. Yesterday "Broadcasting" magazine, a consistent apologist for the industry, published a survey of public opinion happily headlined: "Hardly a Scratch in TV's Image." "The waves of publicity generated by the television quiz investigation have had little effect on the public enjoyment and opinion of TV," says the lead sentence, leading to the suspicion the whole thing is a plot on the part of the newspapers to kick their rival around. Viewers think the quiz investigations are "silly" and "ridiculous," reports the story.

Now it has been my experience —in fact, you may set it down as Crosby's Law — that every survey tells the guy who pays for it what he wants to hear. But even with that in mind, this survey doesn't even begin to bear out the story "Broadcasting" wrote about it. For instance, in the small type, you discover that 46,000,000 people are in favor of the quiz investigation. That hardly bears out "Broadcasting's" conclusion that people think the investigation is a waste of the taxpayer's money (another idea the publicists have been assiduously trying to plant). In another part of the survey headed "And many people hated to see them go," you learn that 32,000,000 people thought it was a good idea kicking the quizzes off the air. Hardly a dent in the public image? Thirty-two million disgruntled viewers make quite a dent. (Actually, there were many more disgusted viewers concealed under a heading "conditional.")

Let's be sensible. There are many people who think the furore over the quizzes has gone way beyond the bounds of reason —but then these same people never got very excited about Charles Van Doren's winning all that money in the first place. The people most deeply disappointed in the quiz rigging are those who made "Twenty-One" a popular show. You can't have it both ways. The people who think the quiz investigations are lot of nonsense are the same ones who think television is largely malarky anyhow. The viewers who are shocked are those who take TV seriously — and it is with the opinion of those people that television should most actively concern itself.

Television can't revel in the popularity of its heroes one moment and the next minute dismiss them as of no importance.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD—With all the excitement over the quiz shows and the refusal to let Hubbell Robinson do "Crime, Inc.", a story of the Mafia, it's nice to know of the applause Sir Laurence Olivier has received for "The Moon and Sixpence," the Somerset Maugham story about the artist Gauguin.

Larry was so pleaded himself that he has agreed to do Dostoevski's "The Idiot," with the same director, Robert Mulligan, and the same writer, S. Lee Pogostin, also for TV. This will be done in the U.S.A., as soon as Larry finishes his stage engagement in "The Entertainer" in London.

I personally think we need better entertainment both in movies and on TV. We have had far too many crime stories. They're not good for the juveniles and certainly put ideas in the heads of some of our wayward youths.

Interesting is the tale that Richard Shepherd of the Jurow-Shepherd team told me. He said that he and Martin (Jurow) engaged Irving Wallace to write a screen treatment on "The Fabulous Barnum" which they will produce as a motion picture next year.

"We asked him to get it out as quickly as he could. Wallace became so fascinated he asked for two weeks more time on the treatment. At the end of the two weeks Wallace said he just couldn't finish the fabulous story of the fabulous Barnum so quickly," said Dick. "So it ended with Wallace writing a complete book which is now on the Book of the Month best seller list, and of course we will use that book for our picture."

I asked Dick about "The Fugitive Kind," which he just finished with Marlon Brando, Joanne Woodward and Anna Magnani. He said he had absolutely no trouble with Marlon. He feels any outbursts from Anna were due to the fact she doesn't understand the English language too well.

The star a producer WANTS for a picture and the one he GETS are sometimes two different things—but I can understand why Sam Bishoff and David Diamond are offering every inducement to Eva Marie Saint to play Mrs. Arnold Rothstein in "The Big Bankroll." Eva would be perfect as the wife of the gambler, Arnold Rothstein, who ruled a gambling empire in the '20's.

Television and Radio

Hardly A Dent?

In twenty-five years in this business, I have never seen such an organized cover-up as is still going — unsuccessfully, I must admit — in the quiz scandal. I wasn't around during the Teapot Dome investigation but it must have been the same thing. When they blow, they sure blow — but the broadcaster just will not see the signs.

First, there was the effort to hush the whole thing up during the grand jury investigation. This culminated in the successful effort to get Judge Schweitzer to suppress the grand jury presentment. Never in the ninety-year recorded history of the grand jury system in New York County has a presentment been suppressed (only one was expunged after being made public).

This was the silliest thing the broadcasters could have done. The presentment would have been a three-day wonder and that would have been that. Suppressed, it drew the attention of Congress who got — not just the presentment which mentioned no names — but the testimony which told everything, names and all. Still, the effort to suppress went on. In Washington, Congressman Oren Harris announced one day that his committee's investigation would end the next day.

That provoked an inquiry from "The New York Herald Tribune" whether there wasn't just as much evidence of rigging of "$64,000 Question" as of "Twenty-One" and the admission that there was evidence of rigging on that quiz and its brother "$64,000 Challenge." The next day the granddaddy of all the big money quizzes landed on the front pages from which it had been carefully shielded up to that point. Why? The supposition is that no one — even NBC, the competing network — wanted to start a scandal over a quiz that had been owned by the president of a network, and "$64,000 Question" had been the brain child of Louis Cowan, president of the CBS television network.

Television's popular image had received a severe kick in the pants and the question was how to repair it. The forthright and honest answer was Dr. Frank Stanton's — a public admission that television had been wrong and a purge of the malpractices. The other method — and it is being actively pursued — is to pretend that nothing has really happened, that the whole thing is a tempest in a teapot, and what's the fuss all about.

Publicists are pushing this idea —After all, we are only kidding and what harm has been done?—with a remarkable degree of success. Yesterday "Broadcasting" magazine, a consistent apologist for the industry, published a survey of public opinion happily headlined: "Hardly a Scratch in TV's Image." "The waves of publicity generated by the television quiz investigation have had little effect on the public enjoyment and opinion of TV," says the lead sentence, leading to the suspicion the whole thing is a plot on the part of the newspapers to kick their rival around. Viewers think the quiz investigations are "silly" and "ridiculous," reports the story.

Now it has been my experience —in fact, you may set it down as Crosby's Law — that every survey tells the guy who pays for it what he wants to hear. But even with that in mind, this survey doesn't even begin to bear out the story "Broadcasting" wrote about it. For instance, in the small type, you discover that 46,000,000 people are in favor of the quiz investigation. That hardly bears out "Broadcasting's" conclusion that people think the investigation is a waste of the taxpayer's money (another idea the publicists have been assiduously trying to plant). In another part of the survey headed "And many people hated to see them go," you learn that 32,000,000 people thought it was a good idea kicking the quizzes off the air. Hardly a dent in the public image? Thirty-two million disgruntled viewers make quite a dent. (Actually, there were many more disgusted viewers concealed under a heading "conditional.")

Let's be sensible. There are many people who think the furore over the quizzes has gone way beyond the bounds of reason —but then these same people never got very excited about Charles Van Doren's winning all that money in the first place. The people most deeply disappointed in the quiz rigging are those who made "Twenty-One" a popular show. You can't have it both ways. The people who think the quiz investigations are lot of nonsense are the same ones who think television is largely malarky anyhow. The viewers who are shocked are those who take TV seriously — and it is with the opinion of those people that television should most actively concern itself.

Television can't revel in the popularity of its heroes one moment and the next minute dismiss them as of no importance.

Mixed Market Dominated By Independent Motors

Support held among the higher-grade industrials—stocks included in the averages which measure the rise and fall in the market. The industrials finished slightly higher on the day while rails and utilities were lower on balance.

Electronics, leaders in recent sessions, ran into profit-taking and the group finished with losses running to more than 3 in Zenith, 1¼ in Beckman and a major fraction in Motorola.

Trading expanded to 3,940,000 shares from 3,320,000 shares on Monday. The market was considerably broader than in the preious session with 1,262 issues crossing the tape. Of these, 582 declined, 456 advanced, and 224 held unchanged. New 1959 lows were set by 52 issues, while 31 touched new highs.

The so - called independent motors—American and Studebaker—Packard—dominated the proceedings. Studebaker was the most active issue of the day with 191,800 shares. It closed at 27⅜ up ⅜. American was second with 168,200 shares, finishing up 7 at 95¼.

American Motors met support on its statement it plans to step up auto body production by 35 per cent. The stock was up 8⅝ at its high.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

What To Do About Bores

How does a bore get to be a bore? Very often the bore is a lonely person who has no one to talk to, so much of the time he's too eager with an audience. This calls for kindness on your part, and it's so much easier to be attentive remembering the reason.

Then, sometimes a bore has simply narrowed his life until his thinking is narrow, perhaps overconcerned with trivialities. The biggest bore is certainly anyone who does all the talking, about himself. Tactfully counter a monotonous subject with an eartching subject, and make it sound so fascinating that the bore catches enough spark to change his tune. But if you can't stop the drone, make the best of it. Be as interested as you can momentarily, and learn the art of rapid exit without offending.

The more we are sought after ourselves, the more we owe kindness to others who aren't. Not to the point of being misleading, because the let-down later is cruel. But it's excusable to show condescension or that you avoid someone, and it's possible to develop a manner so impersonally pleasant toward the worst bores that they don't resent how casual it may be.

The bore never thinks he's a bore, and all of us can become tiresome in some way without knowing it. For a day or two now, count the "I's" when you talk to see if there are too many, and be careful of "my" and "mine." Check the topics you bring up — maybe you're hitting some of them too hard, or you need new interests to widen their variety. Do you repeat yourself, wear out certain phrases, always sound as if you insisted that others believe as you do? Measure your share in all conversations—is it usually over half? You may pass your own test with flying colors, but it's always wise to search out and nip in the bud any possible deterrent to charm.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grains were mixed today on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was off ⅜ to up ¾; corn up ¾ to 1½; oats off ½ to up ⅜; rye off ½ to up ⅛; and soybeans off ⅞ to up ¾.

Corn, oats and soybeans advanced to new highs early Wednesday before profit-taking cut off some of the gains. General buying was inspired by wet weather in the Midwest, snows in the plains states and predictions for snow in the winter wheat area.

Wheat prices turned weak on selling by commission houses. There was some commercial buying of December, but most trade was light.

Corn futures shot up as much as 3½ cents a bushel in the early buying wave. Drought reports from Europe, indicating heavier imports in the near future, influenced some of the buying. But prices fell off later as longs increased offerings. Export subsidies were granted on 2,490,000 bushels of corn.

Oats also went to new high levels. Cash houses bought December, and commission houses took May and July

Outside markets were mostly higher.

Mixed Market Dominated By Independent Motors

Support held among the higher-grade industrials—stocks included in the averages which measure the rise and fall in the market. The industrials finished slightly higher on the day while rails and utilities were lower on balance.

Electronics, leaders in recent sessions, ran into profit-taking and the group finished with losses running to more than 3 in Zenith, 1¼ in Beckman and a major fraction in Motorola.

Trading expanded to 3,940,000 shares from 3,320,000 shares on Monday. The market was considerably broader than in the previous session with 1,262 issues crossing the tape. Of these, 582 declined, 456 advanced, and 224 held unchanged. New 1959 lows were set by 52 issues, while 31 touched new highs.

The so - called independent motors—American and Studebaker—Packard—dominated the proceedings. Studebaker was the most active issue of the day with 191,800 shares. It closed at 27¾ up ⅜. American was second with 168,200 shares, finishing up 7 at 95¼.

American Motors met support on its statement it plans to step up auto body production by 35 per cent. The stock was up 8⅜ at its high.

Leading motors, meanwhile, came under pressure with Chrysler off 1¾. Ford down a point and GM off around a half.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE — Here's how to work it:

A X Y D L B A A X R

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

What To Do About Bores

How does a bore get to be a bore? Very often the bore is a lonely person who has no one to talk to, so much of the time he's too eager with an audience. This calls for kindness on your part, and it's so much easier to be attentive remembering the reason.

Then, sometimes a bore has simply narrowed his life until his thinking is narrow, perhaps overconcerned with trivialities. The biggest bore is certainly anyone who does all the talking, about himself. Tactfully counter a monotonous subject with an ear-catching subject, and make it sound so fascinating that the bore catches enough spark to change his tune. But if you can't stop the drone, make the best of it. Be as interested as you can momentarily, and learn the art of rapid exit without offending.

The more we are sought after ourselves, the more we owe kindness to others who aren't. Not to the point of being misleading, because the let-down later is cruel. But it's excusable to show condescension or that you avoid someone, and it's possible to develop a manner so impersonally pleasant toward the worst bores that they don't resent how casual it may be.

The bore never thinks he's a bore, and all of us can become tiresome in some way without knowing it. For a day or two now, count the "I's" when you talk to see if there are too many, and be careful of "my" and "mine." Check the topics you bring up — maybe you're hitting some of them too hard, or you need new interests to widen their variety. Do you repeat yourself, wear out certain phrases, always sound as if you insisted that others believe as you do? Measure your share in all conversations—is it usually over half? You may pass your own test with flying colors, but it's always wise to search out and nip in the bud any possible deterrent to charm.

Chicago Grains

CHICAGO (UPI)—Grains were mixed today on the Chicago Board of Trade.

At the final bell, wheat was off ⅜ to up ¾; corn up ¾ to 1½; oats off ½ to up ⅝; rye off ½ to up ⅛; and soybeans off ⅛ to up ¾.

Corn, oats and soybeans advanced to new highs early Wednesday before profit-taking cut off some of the gains. General buying was inspired by wet weather in the Midwest, snows in the plains states and predictions for snow in the winter wheat area.

Wheat prices turned weak on selling by commission houses. There was some commercial buying of December, but most trade was light.

Corn futures shot up as much as 3½ cents a bushel in the early buying wave. Drought reports from Europe, indicating heavier imports in the near future, influenced some of the buying. But prices fell off later as longs increased offerings. Export subsidies were granted on 2,490,000 bushels of corn.

Oats also went to new high levels. Cash houses bought December, and commission houses took May and July.

Rye closed steady. The Winnipeg market set new highs on the strength of snow reports.

Part of the soybean spurt was aided by higher meal prices. Longs were good sellers on the advance, and prices receded to weak levels.

Outside markets were mostly higher.

Policy Setting Talks Planned By City Tonight

Mayor Seeks Plan On Street Costs

The Mayor and Council will hold a discussion meeting today at 7:30 p. m. in City Hall, according to Mayor J. Edwin Keech.

The meeting was arranged, he said, so city officials may set policy on items which require too much time to study at Monday pre-council meetings.

One of the subjects on tonight's agenda, he said, is the ordinance to be adopted for setting street construction and repair costs.

The ordinance is needed to implement a charter amendment which became effective on September 15. During discussion at the time the charter was changed, city officials were reported to favor property owners paying 75 per cent of the cost and the city 25 per cent.

It was also announced that the schedule adopted would be based on average current construction costs for each type of work so property owners would know in advance exactly what they would have to pay for the work.

Mayor Keech said the matter must be settled "once and for all."

City officials held a similar session last Saturday morning and held discussions on such items as the road to the city dump, the Thanksgiving and Christmas holiday schedule, ordinances which were introduced Monday and needed improvements to the city's water treatment and storage facilities at Lake Gordon.

Mayor Keech said it was a good meeting and that considerable progress was made.

He said similar discussion meetings will have to be held in addition to Monday meetings if the city is to go ahead.

They actually are Edgar Duer and Judith Hoyman, both distributive education students at Allegany.

Mr. Hoover wrote Chief Gaffney the appointment is a "tribute to your past record of achievements, and I know you are proud of this recognition."

He said all of his associates in the FBI join in wishing Chief Gaffney the best of success and pledged cooperation of the federal agency.

When informed of the letter, Police Commissioner Philmore Fleming commented that the people of Cumberland should be proud to have a man of Chief Gaffney's stature as head of the Police Department.

Mr. Gaffney was named police chief early this year upon the retirement of Chief R. Emmett Flynn, and received his permanent appointment early last month.

As a patrolman, Chief Gaffney graduated from the FBI's fifth National Police Academy class in 1937, two years after he joined the department.

He used the information on fingerprinting, investigating, photography and general police methods to set up the city's Detective and Identification bureau in 1938.

He has kept close ties to the FBI over his years of service on the Cumberland Police Department.

Crews Called Out To Replace Water Valve

Mayor Says City Must Set Example

City crews were working around-the-clock on a downtown repair job last night after Mayor J. Edwin Keech decided the City of Cumberland should set an example for utilities.

Water Department crews were called out shortly after the 5 p. m. traffic rush to begin replacing a defective four-inch water valve at the intersection of Baltimore and George streets.

Mayor Keech said delays on the work which began Tuesday was disrupting downtown traffic.

Saying the city must set an example, he told Water Department crews to resume work last evening and to continue until the task is completed.

A Water Department spokesman said the valve should be installed and in operation by this morning.

The City some time ago asked public utilities engaged in repairs or installations which affect traffic to work around-the-clock to ease the city's traffic problems.

N.C. High Court Upholds Sentences In Violence Cases

RALEIGH, N. C. (AP)—Prison sentences for three workers convicted of violence in the Henderson cotton mill strike were upheld Wednesday by the State Supreme Court.

The court found no error in the Vance County Superior Court trials of Johnnie E. Newton, given 24 months for firing a rifle at two national guardsmen; and Woodrow Gooding and Leroy Williamson, each sentenced to 30 days for firing at Walter Frank Norwood, a non-striker.

The decisions were the first in a mass of appeals filed with the high court in connection with Henderson strike violence.

Appeals on which the court has not ruled include that of Boyd E. Payton, Carolinas director of the Textile Workers Union of America, and seven others convicted of plotting to destroy mill peoperty.

Appeal Is Filed With Zoning Board

Clyde S. Slider, 811 Louisiana Avenue, has filed an appeal to the Board of Zoning Appeals for permission to build a 24 by 28 foot addition to an apartment at 807 Cecil Street.

The permit was refused by the Building Engineer because of insufficient rear yard.

Principals Will Discuss School Administration

The Elementary Principals Association will meet November 16 at 2 p.m. at the Board of Education. At this time the principals will meet with Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of Allegany County schools, to discuss administrative policies of the elementary school.

J. Goodloe Jackson, president of Allegany County Board of Education spoke to the group at its last meeting about the responsibility of the teacher to the future. Mr. Jackson said, "It lies within the power of teachers to so influence the thinking of their pupils that none of them will ever deviate from the principles of the democracy that has withstood the ravages of time. If you do your job well, our future is secure," he told the group.

Following Mr. Jackson's talk, Miss Sara Wright, principal of John Humbird School, presented a gift on behalf of the association to Miss Nell Dowling, former principal at Westernport Elementary School, now retired.

Miss Myra Nefflen, president, and Joseph H. Pellerzi, delegate, reported about meetings they attended in Baltimore recently.

J. Hubert Radcliffe is chairman for the meeting on January 11. His committee consists of Miss T. Imogene Caudill, Miss Hazel Inskeep, John Manley, Miss Nellie R. Powell, and Miss Bernice Winner.

Damage Suit Settlement Is Reached

Attorneys for the plaintiff and defendants in a $45,000 damage suit trial which began yesterday morning in Allegany County Circuit Court reached a settlement before the case got to the petit jury.

William G. Linn, RD 4, city, through his attorney, Thomas N. Berry, had filed the suit against Clyde D. Turner Sr. and Lawrence Roderick, operators of the GTR Bus Lines.

The plaintiff claimed he was a passenger on the bus January 26 when it stopped on Oldtown Road near Millstone Store and Service Station to let off passengers.

He alleges the bus was stopped on the paved surface of the highway and a motorist following crashed into the rear of the bus. Linn said he suffered injuries to his back and nervous system.

Chief Judge Morgan C. Harris presided at the jury trial which opened yesterday morning and was recessed at noon time. After lunch the attorneys conferred and a settlement was reached.

Wool Price Incentive Will Remain Unchanged

The incentive price of shorn wool in the national wool program will continue next year at 62 cents a pound, the same as for the first five years of the program, Miss Elizabeth A. Hoover, manager of the local Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation office, said yesterday.

The price is for the 1960 marketing year, which begins next April 1, according to Miss Hoover, who said that payments to growers will be figured in the same manner as this year.

Each producer will receive a shorn wool payment which is equal to a percentage of his return from wool sales. The percentage will be the amount necessary to raise the national average price received by all producers for shorn wool up to 62 cents a pound.

The purpose of that method of payment, said Miss Hoover, is to encourage growers to do the best possible job of marketing, since the grower who receives most for his wool will also receive the highest payment under the program.

In addition to the payment for shorn wool, payments will be made to each producer who sells lambs that have never been shorn. This payment will be at a rate per hundred weight of live animals which is comparable with the incentive payment per pound of shorn wool.

The wool program is conducted under the National Wool Act as a means of bringing the country's wool production up to 300 million pounds a year. The incentive price is set at a level designed to encourage this goal, based on cost conditions affecting sheep production.

Four Men Are Picked Up In Stolen Car

Three Reported AWOL From Base

Four men riding in a stolen car fell asleep near Fort Hill High School yesterday morning and landed in jail after city detectives started checking up on their stories.

Lt. James E. Van and Detective Thomas J. See, who investigated, said they were not satisfied with the stories told by the men who were found in the damaged vehicle.

Lt. Van said the driver, identified as Edward T. Kelly, a sailor from Norfolk, Va., said the car belonged to his uncle in Philadelphia but was unable to supply details of his telephone number or business address.

The detective lieutenant immediately phoned Joseph B. Simon, Philadelphia, in whose name the vehicle was registered, and was informed the car was stolen from in front of his home four weeks ago.

Lt. Van said there was no report that the vehicle had been stolen and commented that the four men had been stopped by authorities several times before coming to the end of the trail here.

Damages to the 1959 vehicle, he added, will total about $1,500.

Lt. Van said the story told by the men goes like this:

Kelly, after taking the vehicle, drove to Indiana, where he met two sailors, Stanley L. Croff and Richard C. Lofgren, both on leave from Norfolk, and that the three men drove to Norfolk.

He said they explained they were AWOL when they reached that city and decided to "take it on the lam" and started back north.

In Virginia, they picked up a man identified as James Alfred Woodruff, of Norfolk, who was hitch hiking, and came to Cumberland, parking on Greenway Avenue, where they were picked up.

All were held for investigation.

Ruling Made In Boy's Case

The 12-year-old local boy involved in the fatal jeep accident last week yesterday was found guilty of being a delinquent minor and was given a suspended term in the Maryland Training School for Boys.

Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin suspended the commitment in the case of Robert W. Nixon, of 927 Gay Street, but placed the boy on probation for an indefinite period.

The driver of the stolen vehicle, Dewayne C. Sowers, 15, of 933 Glenwood Street, was ordered sent to the Training School last week by Magistrate Fatkin. The Nixon youth also was given a hearing last Friday, but Magistrate Fatkin withheld a decision in the case until yesterday.

Children Taking Interest In National Book Week

Local elementary school children have been visiting the Cumberland Free Public Library and its two branch libraries this week to help celebrate the observance of National Book Week.

Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, said many of the youngsters put forth a lot of effort in designing posters which are on display and will be entered in a contest to determine the winners.

Awards will be presented, according to Miss Walsh, who said the posters are now on display in the main library and the children's room on the second floor.

The poster contest is being sponsored by the Pennsylvania Avenue School branch headed by Mrs. Ralph Rice. The John Humbird branch in charge of Mrs. Mary Aronhalt is also emphasizing children's books and posters.

Taking a special interest in National Book Week are members of Girl Scout Troop 9, sponsored by SS. Peter and Paul School. They are helping their friends, the librarians, celebrate and at the same time completing requirements for reader and print badges.

Named to a committee to assist Miss Walsh this week are Jane Fleming, Ellen Reinhart, Nancy Lakin, Estella Struntz, Janis Fraley and Sheila Coulehan. Mrs. Wilma Zimowski is their scout leader.

In recent weeks, according to Miss Walsh, quite a few Girl Scouts visited the library to do necessary work toward receiving badges.

Miss Walsh is extending an invitation to youngsters and grownups to visit the library and two branches and help celebrate National Book Week.

The old gymnasium inside the school's main entrance has been converted to a library. Bids for the equipment for the new library will be opened by the Allegany County Board of Education Thursday, November 12.

Walsh Group's Legislative Plan Rejected

Interim Body Opposes Increase

By HERB THOMPSON

BALTIMORE (AP) — A proposal to give Maryland's four largest counties more seats in the General Assembly was rejected decisively Wednesday by the Legislative Council, between-sessions study arm of the Legislature.

It also put off for a year a proposed revamping of the State scholarship program and, in a surprise move, voted to recommend to the legislature a veterans bonus to be financed by increases in the Staet sales and income taxes, backed up by the State real estate tax.

These were the major actions at a day-long session of the council as it continued readying legislation for the February, 1960, session of the assembly. A number of other reports were received from special study committees, but formal action on them was deferred.

The council's 12-5 rejection of a plan to increase the number of house seats held by Montgomery, Prince Georges, Anne Arundel and Baltimore counties was a serious setback for that proposal and may even prove a death blow.

It was drawn up by a special

Driver Draws Suspended Term In Auto Deaths

$101 Fine Imposed On Hyndman Youth

Ronald Ray Jamison, 20, Hyndman, Pa., was given a one-year suspended jail term and fined $101.45 yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court after he was found guilty of manslaughter by motor vehicle and reckless driving.

Jamison was the driver of the automobile which crashed June 12 on Baltimore Pike, killing Robert J. Shaffer, 22, and Charles E. Hyre, 20, both of Hyndman.

Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt imposed the jail term on the manslaughter charge, but suspended the sentence and placed Jamison on probation for three years. The fine was imposed on the reckless driving charge.

Police who investigated the crash said the car operated by Jamison was traveling east on U.S. Route 40 when it crashed near Murphy's Restaurant.

The car apparently went out of control, police said, and rammed into a metal pole. Both Shaffer and Hyre were killed instantly.

Jamison, who is serving in the Navy, was hospitalized following the accident. He has returned to active duty.

The purpose of that method of payment, said Miss Hoover, is to encourage growers to do the best possible job of marketing, since the grower who receives most for his wool will also receive the highest payment under the program.

In addition to the payment for shorn wool, payments will be made to each producer who sells lambs that have never been shorn. This payment will be at a rate per hundred weight of live animals which is comparable with the incentive payment per pound of shorn wool.

The wool program is conducted under the National Wool Act as a means of bringing the country's wool production up to 300 million pounds a year. The incentive price is set at a level designed to encourage this goal, based on cost conditions affecting sheep production.

Four Men Are Picked Up In Stolen Car

Three Reported AWOL From Base

Four men riding in a stolen car fell asleep near Fort Hill High School yesterday morning and landed in jail after city detectives started checking up on their stories.

Lt. James E. Van and Detective Thomas J. See, who investigated, said they were not satisfied with the stories told by the men who were found in the damaged vehicle.

Lt. Van said the driver, identified as Edward T. Kelly, a sailor from Norfolk, Va., said the car belonged to his uncle in Philadelphia but was unable to supply details of his telephone number or business address.

The detective lieutenant immediately phoned Joseph B. Simon, Philadelphia, in whose name the vehicle was registered, and was informed the car was stolen from in front of his home four weeks ago.

Lt. Van said there was no report that the vehicle had been stolen and commented that the four men had been stopped by authorities several times before coming to the end of the trail here.

Damages to the 1959 vehicle, he added, will total about $1,500.

Lt. Van said the story told by the men goes like this:

Kelly, after taking the vehicle, drove to Indiana, where he met two sailors, Stanley L. Croff and Richard C. Lofgren, both on leave from Norfolk, and that the three men drove to Norfolk.

He said they explained they were AWOL when they reached that city and decided to "take it on the lam" and started back north.

In Virginia, they picked up a man identified as James Alfred Woodruff, of Norfolk, who was hitch hiking, and came to Cumberland, parking on Greenway Avenue, where they were picked up.

All were held for investigation.

Ruling Made In Boy's Case

The 12-year-old local boy involved in the fatal jeep accident last week yesterday was found guilty of being a delinquent minor and was given a suspended term in the Maryland Training School for Boys.

Magistrate Louis A. Fatkin suspended the commitment in the case of Robert W. Nixon, of 927 Gay Street, but placed the boy on probation for an indefinite period.

The driver of the stolen vehicle, Dewayne C. Sowers, 15, of 933 Glenwood Street, was ordered sent to the Training School last week by Magistrate Fatkin. The Nixon youth also was given a hearing last Friday, but Magistrate Fatkin withheld a decision in the case until yesterday.

Children Taking Interest In National Book Week

Local elementary school children have been visiting the Cumberland Free Public Library and its two branch libraries this week to help celebrate the observance of National Book Week.

Miss Mary G. Walsh, librarian, said many of the youngsters put forth a lot of effort in designing posters which are on display and will be entered in a contest to determine the winners.

Awards will be presented, according to Miss Walsh, who said the posters are now on display in the main library and the children's room on the second floor.

The poster contest is being sponsored by the Pennsylvania Avenue School branch headed by Mrs. Ralph Rice. The John Humbird branch in charge of Mrs. Mary Aronhalt is also emphasizing children's books and posters.

Taking a special interest in National Book Week are members of Girl Scout Troop 9, sponsored by SS. Peter and Paul School. They are helping their friends, the librarians, celebrate and at the same time completing requirements for reader and print badges.

Named to a committee to assist Miss Walsh this week are Jane Fleming, Ellen Reinhart, Nancy Lakin, Estella Struntz, Janis Fraley and Sheila Coulehan. Mrs. Wilma Zimowski is their scout leader.

Among the children who visited the local library are second graders from Gephart School and third graders from Columbia Street.

In recent weeks, according to Miss Walsh, quite a few Girl Scouts visited the library to do necessary work toward receiving badges.

Miss Walsh is extending an invitation to youngsters and grownups to visit the library and two branches and help celebrate National Book Week.

Walsh Group's Legislative Plan Rejected

Interim Body Opposes Increase

By HERB THOMPSON

BALTIMORE (AP) — A proposal to give Maryland's four largest counties more seats in the General Assembly was rejected decisively Wednesday by the Legislative Council, between-sessions study arm of the Legislature.

It also put off for a year a proposed revamping of the State scholarship program and, in a surprise move, voted to recommend to the legislature a veterans bonus to be financed by increases in the Staet sales and income taxes, backed up by the State real estate tax.

These were the major actions at a day-long session of the council as it continued readying legislation for the February, 1960, session of the assembly. A number of other reports were received from special study committees, but formal action on them was deferred.

The council's 12-5 rejection of a plan to increase the number of house seats held by Montgomery, Prince Georges, Anne Arundel and Baltimore counties was a serious setback for that proposal and may even prove a death blow.

Baltimore City legislators teamed with those from rural counties to defeat it. They stood to gain no additional seats under the plan.

$101 Fine Imposed On Hyndman Youth

Ronald Ray Jamison, 20, Hyndman, Pa., was given a one-year suspended jail term and fined $101.45 yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court after he was found guilty of manslaughter by motor vehicle and reckless driving.

Jamison was the driver of the automobile which crashed June 12 on Baltimore Pike, killing Robert J. Shaffer, 22, and Charles E. Hyre, 20, both of Hyndman.

Magistrate F. Allan Weatherholt imposed the jail term on the manslaughter charge, but suspended the sentence and placed Jamison on probation for three years. The fine was imposed on the reckless driving charge.

Police who investigated the crash said the car operated by Jamison was traveling east on U.S. Route 40 when it crashed near Murphy's Restaurant.

The car apparently went out of control, police said, and rammed into a metal pole. Both Shaffer and Hyre were killed instantly.

Jamison, who is serving in the Navy, was hospitalized following the accident. He has returned to active duty.
